Dolan's Flat Denial! His Story on Stand

New Hitler Troop Move; Parley Ends

PRAGUE, May 24 (AP)—Reports of new troop movements on the German side of Czechoslovakia's southern frontier combined with interruption of the Hodza-Henlein peace talks here tended today to discourage such optimism as had developed after Central Europe's critical week-end.

In official quarters reports circulated that yesterday's withdrawal of German troops from the border took place only in Saxony and that they fell back only about 20 miles.

On Czechoslovakia's frontier with Austria it was said the concentration of German troops actually had increased.

The sudden departure of Konrad Henlein caused suspension of his negotiations with Premier Hodza on the dangerous issues between his Sudeten German arty and the Czech government.

This coincided with reports the Sudeten Germans were demanding withdrawal of Czech troops mobilized over the week-end in the Sudeten districts as a condition to continuation of peace talks—a condition Czech officials indicated it would be difficult to meet.

Hotel Suite Just "Office"

Former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan as he appeared in court to take the stand in his own defense in jury fixing charges today. Dolan admitted hiring a suite in the Hotel Statler, where the alleged "fix" is said to have been discussed, but denied using the suite for any purpose other than an "office" in which he could work undisturbed on legal matters.

Brands Testimony Of 'Voices' False

Former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, battling contempt of court charges with three other defendants, took the stand today in Superior court and told his own story of what transpired behind the doors of his Hotel Statler suite.

Describing himself as an "investment dealer," Dolan denied flatly that he was involved in any attempt at fixing a jury in connection with another case pending against him.

He asserted that he never had seen former Representative Robert Dinsmore, one of the present defendants, in the hotel suite and declared he had taken the suite to work on records in preparing for the other trial.

On most of the occasions when he was in the suite, Dolan said, there were also present his sister, J. Walter Quinn, Harold Simpson and Robert Gallagher.

Ouimet 4-3 Victor in Title Golf

TROON, Scotland, May 24 (AP)—Picking up one more hole after building up a three-hole margin on the first nine, Francis Ouimet, Boston veteran and U. S. Walker Cup team captain, today reached the third round of the British amateur golf championship with a 4 and 3 triumph over Dr. William Tweddell.

Ouimet's margin was cut to two up at the tenth, where he was short of the green in two, but he shut out Tweddell by winning the fifteenth and sixteenth as the Briton got into the sand.

Charles Yates of Atlanta, Ga., defeated Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, his Walker Cup teammate on the nineteenth hole, while Fred Haas of Baton Rouge, La., swamped A. J. Ashworth, of England, 7 and 6.

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., May 24 (AP)—Miss Elizabeth R. Roberts, daughter of United States Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, will be married to Charles A. Hamilton of Green's Farms, Conn., in the garden of the Roberts' estate near Phoenixville, June 4.

Czechs Say 'No'! Nazi Talk Off

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, May 24 (AP)—Peace negotiations between the Czechoslovakian government and Sudeten Germans were disrupted today by the sudden departure from Praha of the Sudeten Nazi leader, Konrad Henlein.

The official explanation emphasized that Henlein had gone to Arch on private business and that conversations would be resumed later, but private reports said there had been a break over the basis for starting the discussions.

These reports said the Sudeten Germans had demanded the "unconstitutional situation in the Sudeten borderland" be terminated—in other words that Czechoslovak troops be withdrawn from Sudeten areas before serious negotiations were begun to settle their differences over self-government.

FARLEY CALLED OFF

A demand for "restoration of the right of public assembly" also was attributed to the Sudeten group.

Premier Milan Hodza and Henlein talked for more than two hours last night and were to have met again today with two Sudeten German members of parliament.

At 10 a. m., however, the arrangements were called off, and Henlein departed.

Last night's talks between Hodza and Henlein were said to have been "encouraging," although purely of informatory character.

There was apparent a continued lessening of tension and an increasing hope for a way to peace, an adjustment of the Sudeten German clamor for self-government and an end to Czechoslovak fears that Hitler might one day try to make of this little republic a second Austria.

BRITIAN, FRANCE AID

To Britain and France were attributed firm assurances of support against aggression before Sunday's tense municipal elections, but it was understood here that these assurances were predicated on an agreement for the negotiations begun last night.

Basis for discussions was a projected minorities statute covering government by the various nationalities residing in Czechoslovakia, although Henlein has indicated repeatedly he would not accept it as satisfactory for the 3,500,000 German minority.

DANGER NOT OVER

The government said the premier's talks with Henlein were of an "informative" character for "clarification and pacification of the political situation."

While confident that a brighter outlook prevailed, Czechs were fully aware that danger definitely was not ended.

An estimated 500,000 troops are still under arms. There will be more elections next Sunday, and a third group of municipalities will vote on June 12. Trouble then is a possibility.

WELCOME SIGNS ARE MISSING—Battery of modern anti-aircraft guns in main street of Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia, trained skyward as warning to any unwanted callers. 'Air Artillery' To Span Ocean

(Copyright, 1938)

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—Ensnrouded in secrecy, the Army Air Corps has developed "aerial artillery" which will reach to Europe or half way across the Pacific, if necessary, to defend the United States from attack.

In what is regarded as the most revolutionary forward step in aviation since Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's solo flight to Paris, the Air Corps has designed a bombing plane which will fly non-stop from the United States to Europe and return, carrying a heavy cargo of bombs.

It will be the largest and most formidable military airplane the world has ever known. In size, speed, range, bomb capacity and protective armament, it is believed to be years in advance of the military aviation of any other power.

Need for such long range bombers was graphically illustrated in the recent war games of the GHQ air force on the eastern seaboard.

In appearance the bomber will be similar to the four-engined ships which have already given the United States the most advanced and most formidable high-speed, long-range bombing arm in the world. Its speed will exceed 250 miles an hour.

The four-engined bombers have a gross weight of 35,000 pounds. Their bigger sister, the XB-15, of which the army has only one, weighs 60,000 pounds, is 90 feet long and has a wing spread of 150 feet.

200 FEET LONG

The new bomber, as designed, will weigh 150,000 pounds, will have a wing spread in excess of 200 feet, probably will be armored with small cannon, firing high-explosive shells, as well as eight or 10 machine guns, and will carry a crew of about 20.

It will carry several tons of bombs, and its range will be approximately 8000 miles.

The XB-15 has a range in excess of 5000 miles and the smaller four-engined bombers a range of in excess of 3000 miles.

The new bomber is expected to cost in the neighborhood of a million dollars.

Lay Nazi Plot to Iron Guard Chief

BUCHAREST, May 24 (AP)—The State today disclosed a letter in which it said Corneliu Codreanu, Fascist leader of the Iron Guards, had sought help to make Rumania a Nazi country in 1939.

The letter was read at a secret session of the military tribunal trying Codreanu on charges of espionage and high treason. It was said to have been signed by the Iron Guard chieftain, but he denied all knowledge of it.

Hitler Back In Berlin, Calls Aides

BERLIN, May 24 ((INS)—Chancellor Hitler cut short his Bavarian holiday and left suddenly in the night for Berlin in a move which swiftly gave rise to renewed fears that Nazi Germany is not yet satisfied with the status of the Czechoslovakian political crisis.

Simultaneously, it was reported many German army officers on leave have been recalled to their barracks. Trains moving in the direction of Germany's frontiers were reported still packed with soldiers apparently rejoining their regiments.

CALLS ADVISERS

These military and administrative developments came despite official Nazi government statements aimed at a peaceful settlement of the Czech minorities question and while Konrad Henlein, Czechoslovakian "Hitler" was negotiating with Premier Hodza in Prague.

Hitler, accompanied by his adjutant and several members of the Reich chancellory, boarded a special train for Berlin. It was unconfirmedly said that Hitler has summoned his advisers to a special meeting at the German chancellory for tonight or Wednesday.

BRITAIN ATTACKED

Nazi authorities kept a sharp eye on developments in Prague to see what practical steps will be taken to relieve the Sudeten situation.

The German press, while not quite so full of blazing headlines violently criticizing Czechoslovakia, was featured tonight by a smashing editorial attack against Great Britain.

The Deutsche Actien Zeitung charged England and France with seeking to establish a protectorate within central Europe and warned against the consequences if the Prague government is thereby encouraged to the injury of the Sudetens.

Ousted Wives Up in Arms

Wives Open Jobs Fight—In a fight to get their municipal jobs back, eight working wives of Somerville today appeared at a public hearing in City Hall. Firing 8 Wives Called Illegal

Action of Mayor John M. Lynch of Somerville in ousting eight married women from city department jobs was in "flagrant violation" of state civil service law, Attorney Wendell P. Murray charged today.

Representing the "fired" wives at a public hearing in Somerville city hall, Murray accused Mayor Lynch of attempting a legal quibble in claiming that jobs of married women have been "abolished" in interests of economy.

CAPABLE ONES FIRED

"That's just pretense," Murray asserted. "It's an effort to cover up the fact that these wives have been thrown out of jobs they have filled competently and efficiently.

"Firing capable workers, just because they're married, is in flagrant violation of letter and spirit of the civil service law."

As Attorney Murray began his opening argument, the Somerville aldermanic chamber, where today's hearing was held, was jammed with friends of the ousted wives and with representatives of state and city women's organizations.

MAKE TEST CASE

Plainly evident was the fact that Mayor Lynch's "thumbs down" drive on working wives has been seized upon as a test case by numerous influential groups.

As presiding officer at the hearing, Mayor Lynch himself opened proceedings by listing the married women whose positions he "eliminated as unnecessary," he said.

EIGHT HE OUSTED

The eight he named included Mrs. Marion L. Gillard, Mrs. Frances S. Lewis, Mrs. Emmeline W. Edkin, Mrs. Leah M. Estes, Mrs. Frances Nugent, Mrs. Mary C. Welch, Mrs. Henrietta B. Keenan and Mrs. Linegar Hazelton.

The mayor took up the case of each ousted wife separately, citing her former position, now "abolished," and her husband's employment.

Roosevelt Goes On Air Friday

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt will make a nationally-broadcast address Friday at commencement exercises of the Arthurdale, W. Va., high school.

The White House said today the address, starting at 3 p. m. (EDT), probably would last about 15 minutes.

DONALD CARROLL

CHARLOTTE MATHIESEN

'Love Killer' Escapes Chair

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Pale and solemn, 16-year-old Donald Carroll today escaped possible death in the electric chair when the state called for a "fair and just verdict without meaning the death penalty," in connection with the slaying of his stenographer sweetheart, Charlotte Mathiesen, 18.

Prosecutor Joseph V. Loscalzo, in a 12-minute opening address, told the all-male jury:

"I realize you men are weighed down by sympathy, and frankly I say to you I am of the same feeling."

The mother of the slain girl, sitting with Donald's parents in the courtroom, wept as Loscalzo reviewed the events of the night of March 24 when, he said, Donald shot his sweetheart with his father's army revolver in an unfulfilled suicide pact "because we decided death was the only way out for us both."

"WILFULLY SHOT HER"

They decided on the death pact, Loscalzo said, when they discovered that Charlotte was to become a mother, and they were caught up in despair at their poverty and youth.

Donald dropped in his chair, leaning his head against his hands and staring at the floor as the prosecutor, after expressing sympathy, continued in a sterner voice:

"The people expect to prove that the defendant willfully, feloniously and with forethought shot his sweetheart."

Loscalzo said he assumed from questions by Defense Attorney Sydney Rosenthal during the selection of jurors that the defense would base its case on "temporary insanity, love insanity or emotional insanity."

SNYDER-GRAY ROOM

In conclusion, he urged the jury to bring in a verdict "without regard to how it might harm or hurt anyone."

The boy on trial looks like an average high school boy at the algebra stage. Some pigeons fly by the window, and he looks out at them and the sun, but usually he stares at his shoes or his hands. It is the same courtroom where Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray were tried.

The acoustics are bad. Ends of sentences drift away, sentences about "youth . . . fair trial . . . uncompleted suicide pact . . . the girl was an expectant mother.

Don Carroll's tow-headed 12-year-old brother stirs wearily, and a few worried-looking young friends of the couple tiptoe in for the session.

THIS ONE?

Nutty Stuff Here

Diamond, diamond, who took the diamond?

Well—if a duck didn't, then a pigeon did, and if a pigeon didn't, then a squirrel did!

As simple as that was official deduction today in the mystery of the $800 diamond belonging to Mrs. Jeanne Lerman of Arlington road, Brookline.

The diamond disappeared Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Lerman fed bread to the ducks and pigeons in the Public Garden. One of the ducks—or maybe it was a pigeon—pecked a bit too greedily at finger and presto! the diamond was gone.

A duck was suspected of swallowing the gem. There was talk of X-rays and knives and fluoroscopes to haunt the inhabitants of the Garden pond.

Park Commissioner William P. Long, however, came to their rescue in the nick of time with the announcement their status was impeccable and their privacy inviolate.

Relieved of the fears of being manhandled, the ducks quacked with relief and swam again in and out among the swan boats.

But the diamond was still missing.

Suspicion has turned to the pigeon and the squirrel, both natives at the Garden. For the pigeons - hundreds of them— there is safety in numbers; for the squirrels there is safety in speed.

W. Cameron Forbes Looks Back on Spain

'Franco to Rule in Peace'

General Franco's troops are "eventually going to win" in their fight against "anti-Christ Red Spain," according to W. Cameron Forbes.

So said the famed Boston diplomat and banker at a gathering of freshmen in the Harvard Union. Recently returned from a visit to Spain with Boston publisher Ellery Sedgwick, Mr. Forbes spoke of his experiences with General Franco's aides.

"Franco now controls 82 per cent of the Spanish provinces," Mr. Forbes said, "and personally I don't think there can be any reasonable doubt that he is going to win.

"Hardships have been great in Spain, and mortality high. Both are going to be greater, for the war is not by any means over. But General Franco can't be beaten by an enemy who lack his kind of leadership."

Russia Controlled Loyalist Moves

A reign of peace and religious toleration will probably come with Franco's victory, Forbes said. The government of the "rebels" will be a "government of patriots."

"The rule of the popular front government, before the revolution broke out, was characterizd by turmoil and murders. The so-called rebels felt that the government did not represent the majority of the people.

W. CAMERON FORBES, who predicts that, eventually, General Franco's troops are going to win their fight

They didn't like to see churches destroyd and priests killed," Mr. Forbes declared.

"Italy and Germany interfered because they feared a Sovietized Spain under Russian orders. I have evidence that operations of the Loyalists have been pretty directly under control of Russia until recently.

"In General Franco's section of Spain we found almost an absolute state of peace, no worry about war. The people were engaged in peaceful pursuits—in farm construction, and in building good roads.

Sees Hope for Working People

"The people seem to have plenty of food, and to be enduring the war without an extra burden of taxes. A regular penal code is in force. There is no evidence that prisoners are taken out in squads and shot, as has been alleged.

"Probably what will come to Spain with Franco's final victory will be a monarchy, perhaps with Franco as regent. But of one thing you can be sure—the working people under Franco will be given an even break.

"As General Quiepo de Llano said: 'The only way we can fight off the Red menace is to give the working man particular and deserved favor.'"

Mr. Forbes labelled as "very curious" the fact that "Franco's good works are scarcely ever given proper publicity in American papers."

Drive to Smash Franco's Hold

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier) May 24 (AP)—Some of the heaviest fighting in Spain's nearly two-year-old civil war developed all along the 60-mile front from Lerida to Sort today as the Government sought to loosen the Insurgent foothold in Catalonia.

The main government assault, made by militiamen well equipped and supported, was directed at Balaguer, 80 miles northwest of Barcelona where the Insurgents established a formidable bridgehead in their spring drive to the sea to protect their crossing of the River Segre.

The little village of La Repita, eastern point of the bridgehead, was reported to have changed hands eight times since the government attacks in force began Sunday morning.

Insurgent dispatches admitted seriousness of the government offensive, but said many government militiamen were killed in fruitless attacks on strong positions.

On the other hand, government reports said the Balaguer bridgehead was being forced in slowly by repeated poundings. The militia was said to have increased its pressure on the northern end of the line near Sort where the capture of several mountain positions threatened the insurgents' flank.

On the Teruel front insurgents pushed their drive on the Valencia highway with a three-mile advance beyond El Castellar, toward Mora de Rubielos.

Arabs Wire King Holy War Threat

JERUSALEM, May 24 (AP)—Threats of a Moslem holy war if Palestine should be partitioned without the fulfillment of Arab demands were reported today, coincident with new terrorism in which three persons were killed and 20 wounded.

Sheikh Kashef al Ghata, a high Moslem authority, telegraphed the warning of a "jihad," holy war, to King George, it was reported reliably from Iraq. It was said he would call on the whole Moslem world to support the Holy Land's Arabs.

Move to Expand Security Field

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The advisory council on social security recommended today extension of the federal old-age insurance program to employes of private non-profit religious, charitable and educational institutions.

The council also suggested, in a letter to Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the social security board, that the program "be extended as rapidly as feasible to include additional groups now excluded."

Japan Pushes Drive to Gain Rail Control

SHANGHAI, May 24 (AP)—The Japanese offensive to choke all China's railways today rolled toward Kaifeng, ancient capital of Honan Province and 40 miles east of the important junction at Chengchow.

Japanese planes bombed Kaifeng in a morning attack and claimed destruction of ten trains and considerable trackage. The station at Chengchow also was bombed, impending communications east therefrom.

Japanese artillery, tanks and cavalry were moving toward Kaifeng, followed by infantry which captured the old city's key defenses at Lanfeng.

The nearest Japanese column was fighting its way along the Lunghai about Chaotaoying, 15 miles east of Kaifeng.

(Hankow dispatches said several were killed at Kaifeng by aerial bombardment, and that the fighting a few miles east could be heard within the city.)

Revolt Collapses, Cedillo in Flight

MEXICO CITY, May 24 (INS)—General Saturnino Cedillo's rebellion against the federal government has collapsed and Cedillo himself is fleeing toward Tamaulipas, trying to escape to the United States, the war department announced today.

Col. Alfredo Lezama, searching for the rebels with army airplanes, reported that Cedillo, accompanied by only a hundred followers, was last known to be at Montebello, in the eastern part of San Luis Potosi.

Gen. Jose Beltran, with 3000 federal troops, who is pursuing the Cedillistas, camped last night at Las Palomas, Cedillo's former headquarters.

Beltran stated that all was confusion there, and that Cedillo has destroyed all equipment that he could not take with him in his flight.

In a dispatch to the War Department, Gen. Beltran expressed confidence that he would capture Cedillo. Only guerilla bands, he said, are now operating in San Luis Potosi, but further clashes with them are anticipated.

A complete political reorganization of this state, seat of the Cedillo revolt, is forecast.

It is expected that convents and Catholic schools will be suppressed, and that new religious legislation for the state will be enacted as soon as the Legislature can be convened.

Cedillo had permitted religious schools to function in defiance of the federal constitution.

Labor laws also will be enacted in accordance with the policies of President Lazaro Cardenas.

Seek Identity Of Patient

Worcester detectives were due at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton today to determine if a patient recovering from an emergency operation is actually Raymond Patriarca, whose trial was suddenly postponed in Worcester court yesterday.

Patriarca and Raymond Tilley of Boston are charged with attempting to rob a Webster optical factory of gold. Their trial was postponed when counsel for Patriarca said he had been forced to undergo the operation.

Bomb Valencia, Barcelona Again

MADRID, May 24 (AP)—Insurgent warplanes (twice raided Valencia early today, causing an unspecified number of casualties and material damage.

Barcelona also was raided by planes flying so high as to be invisible to the naked eye, said dispatches from that city. Bombs fell in the southern part of the city, but estimates of damage were not immediately available.

DENMARK BOWS TO DUCE

COPENHAGEN, May 24 (AP)—Denmark today recognized Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. She became the 26th nation to accredit her envoy at Rome to the King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia.

Halpern Story Stirs Storm

McCormack Seeks Communist Probe

Of all the harrowing tales uncovering the underground machinations of America's Communists in recruiting "fodder" for the Spanish Loyalist war machine, none was so graphic as that told in a Boston Evening American exclusive series by Captain Alvin Halpern, Dorchester youth.

It was Halpern's recountal of the intrigue which brought him to the battlefields of Spain that revealed Boston Communists' part in the nationwide recruiting scheme and started a general expose of the Russia-minded group's activities.

FROBE DEMANDED

It was such stories as Halpern's that today inspired Congressman McCormack of South Boston to demand a federal investigation into the subversive plot to put American youth before foreign guns.

of their battle for "democracy" in Spain.

It was not until Halpern reached

Dorchester Youth Bared Spain Plot

the other side and went through several severe campaigns, being wounded twice, that he realized he was a victim of subversive propaganda.

In New York he was put aboard a ship with other recruits, and by devious underground channels was transported to Spain through France, whose officials apparently winked at the violation of international law.

He described how he and other American youths fighting for "democracy" were in reality being schooled as possible future revolutionists in the land they had left.

He related his sudden awakening to the fact he was not fighting for "democracy," but actually for Soviet Russia, 2000 miles away from Spain.

DESERTIONS TOLD

Wholesale desertions from the Loyalist army by American youths who had the same awakening were related in another part of his series.

Reluctantly, the Loyalists allowed Halpern to return to America at the end of his service period.

Senate Studies Lodge Demand For Jobs to All

WASHINGTON, May 24 — Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's amendment to the government's huge relief measure, diverting $500,000,000 of "pump-prime" items toward relief work to give every needy person a job, today held the attention of the Senate.

Decrying the provision of huge sums for dealers in building materials while the man in the street goes hungry, Senator Lodge declared his amendment is aimed at procuring work for every destitute person in the nation, either for a whole year or part of a year.

"This amendment strikes out the pump priming portion of the current bill," Lodge said, "and provides that every needy and employable man and woman in the United States will get a WPA job.

REGULAR WORK

"The additional $500,000,000 is to be devoted to regular WPA work, white-collar projects and the National Youth Administration—activities which reach those in greatest need.

"The times are so serious that the country cannot afford the luxury of a pump-priming program. Such a program was all very well when the Treasury was in good condition and before this enormous debt had been piled up. It was tried then. It did not work then. It won't work now.

"My amendment puts more money into jobs and less into structures—more money for man and less money for the dealers in building materials.

"Evidence shows that in New York city there were 139,000 employable people on WPA and 165,000 equally employable people who were not. This amendment will take care of that situation.

"This money is intended for the needy people of America—not for some of them, but for all of them. When it comes to human misery, there should be no favorites."

The amendment further provides that the funds shall be expended in proportion to the number of unemployed in each state. If adopted it would increase the allotment for work relief to $2,214,905,000.

SENATOR LODGE

Puts Color In His Work

Much happier to have it that way, Capt. William D. Donovan of Joy street police station was out strolling his division today in civilian garb. Capt. Donovan was out today because he was in yesterday—and the latter considerably to his sorrow.

Entering his office, the skipper was just in time to save from falling a painter engaged in redecorating the room.

But the paintpot descended on the skipper, ruining his uniform—not to mention his luxuriant titian locks.

So today the captain was content to stay out of the office.

Boys' Club Elects Traylor, Taylor

Mahlon E. Traylor and William D. Taylor were today elected to the board of directors of the Boys' Club of Boston, at a joint meeting of the club and Boys' Camps, Inc., at the Brookline Country Club.

CARDOZO IS 68 TODAY

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, who has been absent from the Supreme Court because of illness since December 10, became 68 today. He is at Port Chester, N. Y., recuperating from heart disease.

Kennedys Hear Grandpa Fitz

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was a happy man today for his grandchildren, 3000 miles across the Atlantic in London, heard him give a short wave radio address on "World Trade" and tell how prominently the port of Boston figures in it.

His grandchildren, the sons and daughters of United States Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, were informed by cable of the address and listened to the broadcast, as did their parents.

Budapest Throng Greets U. S. Prelate

BUDAPEST, May 24 (AP)—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, and Archbishop John Joseph Glennon of St. Louis arrived here today for the Eucharistic congress which opens tomorrow.

They were received at the station by the Hungarian primate, Justinian Cardinal Seredi, and driven to his residence through streets lined with cheering spectators.

British Still Bar Mrs. Bickford

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—A reliable source indicated today that a British refusal to permit Mrs. Eve Bickford, wife of a Buffalo, N. Y., real estate dealer, to return from Germany to Britain still stands.

Mrs. Bickford flew from Berlin to Croydon Airdrome Friday and returned by air to Berlin when the British Home Office refused her re-entry. It was learned Mrs. Bickford was turned back on grounds she did not have sufficient means of support.

$30,255,879 MACY ESTATE

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Valentine Everit Macy, philantropist and president of the Westchester Park Association, who died on March 21, 1930, left a net estate of $30,255,879, according to an estate tax appraisal filed today.

Cambridge Row May End With Bearded Cops

As far as he's concerned, Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy said today that 23 reserve officers for the Cambridge police department "will have beards and crutches" before receiving appointments from him.

The rift between Leahy and Mayor John W. Lyons thus widened.

Mayor Lyons suggested the promotion of John H. King to a lieutenancy and called Leahy into conference. He refused to make the promotion.

Today the mayor repeated a request for the appointment of 23 reserves.

Leahy replied:

"They'll have crutches and beards before getting jobs from me.

"Of course the mayor can order me to do it, but I'll have to make my selection from the old, over-milked civil service list."

Hint Third Party In Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 24 (AP)—The possibility of a third party entering Pennsylvania's general election in November took on new significance today with the disclosure that independent political groups—Democratic and Republican—have been negotiating for a preempted party ticket.

Charles W. Carroll of Philadelphia, pre-emptor and gubernatorial nominee of the pathfinder party, said he had been approached by several groups interesting in taking over his ticket.

Prankster Sends In 'Three-Bagger'

BALTIMORE, May 24 (AP)—A prankster who apparently knew fire department practice sent in a false alarm—then used the fire department code to indicate it was a three-alarm fire. Twenty engines responded, then wondered who the culprit was. Only department executives are supposed to be able to turn in multiple alarm calls.

Boxing Bear (Not Max) Wins $12,500

KINGSTON, N. Y., May 24 (AP)—The allegedly lost ability of Teddy, eight-year-old former boxing bear, to amuse the public with his fistic powers has been fixed by a jury at $12,500.

The jury awarded that amount to Willie and Gustave Waldorf, Teddy's owners, who claimed he was permanently injured in a truck-bus collision.

Blast Burns Fatal to Doctor's Wife

Burned and otherwise injured, May 9, in an explosion which resulted, police said, from an attempt at suicide by gas, Mrs. Marie Robinson Legg, 45, of Brighton, died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

She was the wife of one of Boston's most distinguished surgeons, Dr. Arthur Thornton Legg, Harvard graduate and infantile paralysis expert.

Mrs. Legg was found unconscious in her Commonwealth avenue apartment after a blast in her kitchen.

Doors and windows of the apartment had been sealed with adhesive tape, according to police.

Burners of the kitchen stove were open and gas had apparently been ignited by a pilot light, causing the explosion.

Found in Mrs. Legg's handbag was an unsigned note, addressed "Dearest."

It assured her husband she had loved him "from the beginning."

"Goodby dear," it concluded, "I wish I could say something more, but I am past thinking."

Fishermen's Races Oct. 9

This season's scheduled renewal of international fishermen's races, off Boston, has been officially postponed from August 21 to October 9, the committee in charge announced today.

The later date has been set in order to make sure of "real fishermen's weather," it was explained.

Rivals of long standing, the competing schooners Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester and Bluenose of Lunenburg, N. S., both show to best advantage in an honest "blow of wind," their crews and backers feel.

Captured Sparrow

A bird in the hand is worth two in the ventilator shaft, even if only one is there. Anyway, the contempt of court sparrow faces his captor, John Johnson, today in East Cambridge courthouse

'Love Call' Ends Sparrow's 4-Day Courthouse Reign

Four days in the East Cambridge court house ventilator, aloof to bread, meat and wine, Habeas Corpus, a temperamental English sparrow, fell for a woman.

Or at least he thought it was that.

But today he discovered it was Special Officer John T. Johnson who lured him out with a first-class imitation of the mating call.

For four days Habeas Corpus, a voluntry, gay and noisy prisoner, disturbed Court Judge Franklin T. Hammond.

Vainly he was tempted with water, bread, fancy nuts wine, meat, grass seed and candy.

Then Special Officer Johnson tried the chir-up-up (S O S) and the chup-chup (general alarm fire), but all he got from Habeas Corpus was "twerp!" (censored).

Two hours' practice, and Johnson returned with the come-hither call.

Habeas Corpus flew out of the ventilator and was gone to the spring breezes.

Death Stands Under Tree

When a neighbor investigated today why Joseph Beguneiz, 65-year-old handyman on the Foster estate, Medford, stood so long under a tree, he discovered he was dead, hanging from a limb—his feet six inches from the ground.

The neighbor, Michael Kisluk of Riverside avenue, Medford, called police, who cut him down.

Medical Examiner John P. Reardon pronounced Beguneiz dead of strangulation.

Nantucket High Pupils Strike

NANTUCKET, May 24—Time-honored island precedent, dating back over many a long year, was shattered here today when high school pupils went on "strike" in protest against dismissal of two popular teachers.

More than half the student body marched from high school grounds on Academy Hill, down Main street and through the village's business section.

The high school "walkout" came after music rehearsal had been held in an assembly building.

Of a total of 175 students, an estimated 100 refused to go back to school.

The "strike" came as sequel to school committee action in dismissing Clyde C. Fussell and Miss Edith Thompson.

Superintendent of Schools Charles S. Taylor vainly appealed for return of "striking" pupils to their lessons.

He offered to discuss the facility dismissals with "duly elected" representatives of the student body if the strike were called off.

According to students, the teachers were denied reappointment in order to prevent them establishing tenure of employment.

King for Day

Cleaner Cleans Bank

HARTFORD, Ct., May 24 (INS)—His pockets crammed with $10 and $20 bills, Philip Koropchuck, 49, window cleaner, rode into town from Holyoke, Mass., in a taxicab and remained "king for a day."

He was back in Holyoke today, a prisoner. Police charge the window cleaner's rise to riches occurred over the week-end after he had been employed to clean up a Holyoke bank.

When the bank opened, $829 was missing.

The window cleaner was arrested when police were attracted by him as he walked along the street with a fistful of bills in each hand.

A count showed, however, there was only $263.

6 Years DOUBLE LIFE---

E. Boston Man Now in JAIL

Six surprising years of double life, during which his four children by two wives played with each other, not knowing they had a mutual father, ended suddenly today for Anthony Corlito, 39, of Cottage street, East Boston.

Through the combination of a six-year-old non-support warrant and checking by welfare officials, Corlito was arrested on charges of non-support and polygamy.

In East Boston court he pleaded guilty to both charges and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction on each.

According to police, he married one wife within a month of marrying the first, left the second again for the first, then went back to the second—and continued this switching, while each wife remained blissfully ignorant of the other, although they lived but one street apart.

FATHER OF FOUR

During the six years each wife has had two children.

According to the police investigation, after Inspector Patrick Mulvey had come up out of the tangle, Corlito married Maria Fusco of Providence in September, 1929, leaving her there.

A month later, he married Mary Gallo in East Boston, a young widow whose mother had taken her two children of the first marriage back to Italy.

Shortly after the second marriage, Corlito went to Providence and brought Wife No. 1 to Boston, he admitted, according to police, and then began his double life, first with one wife and then with the other.

TRAPPED BY WELFARE

Six years ago, however, the second wife charged Corlito with non-support, but nothing was done about the warrant and Corlito continued to see her.

It was a checkup of welfare officials, who had been paying regular sums to the second wife for some time, that disclosed the strange double life.

B. U. Fund Drive Hits $535,016

Boston University's building fund for the college of business administration today stood at $535,016.77 after new subscriptions had been turned in by 200 alumni workers at a campaign supper meeting in Jacob Sleeper Hall on Boylston street.

Alumni were urged to complete solicitations before the annual field day celebration on June 11. The sum of $17,058.41 has been raised in the last two weeks.

Adam and Eve Swap Doctor a Rib For a Nose

NEW YORK, May 24—And Dr. James Stoller caused a deep sleep to fall upon Richard (Adam) Roberts of Boston and he slept.

And he took one of his ribs (floating) and brought to him a woman, Miss Edith (Eve) Gold of Providence, R. I., and said unto him:

"This rib is now my rib for $250, which I have cut out of thee. Therefore, I shall put a new nose on the woman, and go thy way in peace."

Once it came to pass, Adam and Eve went dancing and Eve's nose was cleaved by an automobile; and she was sore hurt.

And one psychiatrist, of the land of West 52nd street, said unto her:

"For thy inferiority complex ask, take thyself to Dr. James Stoller, in the temple of the Grafting Donors Bureau, beyond the fumes of Fifth avenue—for $290."

But Eve had not $290; and she was sore hurt.

But Adam, up-and-coming architect, said unto Dr. Stoller:

"Take from me one first-class rib at $250 and do unto her one first-class nose."

And it was done. And so they were married.

Frail Mama Lashes Boy, Cheats Jail

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—Mrs. Mary Bradley, a frail and elderly widow, carried out the orders of Magistrate Overton Harris today by whipping her sturdy 16-year-old son so hard that she raised red welts on his back.

If she hadn't, Magistrate Harris would have sent him to jail.

The boy, Tommy Bradley, had pleaded guilty in night court to pulling an emergency cord in an I. R. T. subway train.

And the magistrate warned the mother:

"Raise welts on your boy. Whip him so it will show and bring him back here on Thursday."

There was no alternative for Mrs. Bradley. Even though she thought the magistrate was "unfair," she carried out instructions. After all, she didn't want to see Tommy go to jail.

CRIES AS LASH FALLS

For 13 years—ever since her husband died—she has been supporting Tommy and his older brother, John, 18, as well as herself. John helps a little now, for he's on WPA.

They live in a top-floor railroad flat, with the rumbling of the "L" trains dinning in their ears day and night. The structure is only a short distance from their windows.

In a neat house dress, the gray-haired mother looked up from her housecleaning today and said:

"Well, I did it.

"I carried out the judge's orders last night even though I thought it was unjust. I cried and Tommy cried. He didn't cry so much because it hurt so bad. He thought he was being punished unjustly.

"I've spanked him before, but only when he deserved it."

Mrs. Bradley, who is 5 feet 7 and weighs only about 120 pounds, sighed as she related how she took a strap to Tommy, who is 5 feet 8 and weighs about 140.

WITH HIS SUNDAY BELT

"I took the belt from his Sunday pants and I said:

"'Tom, come into the bathroom. You know what the judge said and now I've got to do it.'

"He said:

"'Aw, Ma, I don't know why you're doing this. I don't care what the judge said, I'm not the guilty one. Another boy pulled the cord and ran away. I didn't, so I stayed. And they accused me of it.'

"But I told him I didn't have any money to fight the case and he would have to take his whipping. I told him he could wear his shorts. I believed him, but what could I do?

"I gave him eight or ten good whacks with the belt. I don't think the marks will last until Thursday. I don't know what the judge will say."

Ex-Hub Artist Slain Before Candle Shrine

he had been entertaining a guest. Apparently there had been a drinking party, detectives said.

In Laconia, N. H., today, Simpson's mother said she had just received an air mail letter from her son, acknowledging the $50, when Los Angeles police called to notify her of her son's death.

She sent him the money, she said, to pay a bill for tuition at a Los Angeles art school.

STUDIED ART HERE

Simpson, police learned, recently met a man at a Los Angeles art exhibition. He and the stranger struck up a friendship and were seen much in each other's company, police were informed. A search for this "mysterious stranger" was under way today.

Simpson studied art for one year in Boston. Heir to his father's chain store fortune, he only recently returned from France, where, police said they were given to understand, he purchased a number of art treasures.

Mrs. Simpson, in Laconia, said her son had forsaken practically all social activities in favor of his art collecting.

MYSTERY PHONE CALL

Simpson's apartment in Los Angeles, police found, was elaborately hung with Japanese brocades and prints. Other appointments were equally luxurious, even to the number of suits of clothing found hanging in Simpson's wardrobe.

The mysterious shrine of black candles in front of which Simpson's body lay remained unexplained.

So, too, did a mysterious telephone call, which Joaquin Popez, a friend of the murdered man, said he received. It was Popez who discovered the murder and called police. He said he went to Simpson's apartment in response to the telephone call. A voice at the other end of the wire told him to go to Simpson's apartment, he said. Then, he stated, the caller hung up.

Ex-Envoy's Wife Going to Work

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Mme. Edgar L. G. Prochnik, wife of the former minister from Austria, is going into the trousseau and lingerie business.

She said today she had accepted a position as the Washington representative of a New York firm and—if the family is still here in the fall—she intends to add dress designing as a sideline.

Mme. Prochnik, the former Gretchen James of St. Paul, Minn., studied dressmaking as a girl and has always designed her children's clothes.

The Prochniks moved into a rented home a month after Germany annexed Austria. The former minister now is an attache of the German embassy. Their lease is up September 1, Mme. Prochnik said, and the family's plans are indefinite.

"I hope we stay in the United States," she said, "but I have no idea just what will happen."

Franco Wrote Not of 'Love,' Dahl Still Held

LONDON, May 24 (INS)—Misinterpretation of a gallant Spanish phrase at the end of a letter which Generalissimo Francisco Franco sent to Mrs. Edythe Rogers Dahl, wife of the American aviator held prisoner by the Insurgents at Salamanca, has resulted in her failure to free him, she said today.

The pretty platinum blonde night club singer explained that ever since publication of the letter she received from the Generalissimo in reply to a request for her husband's release, "I have never been near freeing my husband."

After receiving Mrs. Dahl's plea, along with a bewitching photograph of herself, Franco sent her a reassuring reply which ended:

"Spain does not need the life of this American. Your servant kisses your foot."

Today Mrs. Dahl said:

"Many people thought the sentence about kissing meant that Franco had fallen in love with me, and the generalissimo heard of it. Since then the chances of freeing Harold have become dimmer."

Mrs. Dahl is the wife of Harold E. Dahl of Champaign, Ill., the 28-year-old aviator, who while flying for the government forces was shot down by the Insurgents nearly a year ago. Later Dahl was pardoned by Franco after a court-martial had sentenced him to death. He is still in an Insurgent prison.

Kennedy Sued For a Million

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—A $1,000,000 suit against Joseph P. Kennedy, now ambassador to Great Britain; James M. Landis and two present members of the Securities and Exchange Commission was on file in the U. S. district court today by J. Edward Jones, Scarsdale, N. Y., dealer in oil securities.

The suit charged Kennedy, Landis, and SEC Commissioners George C. Matthews and Robert E. Healy conspired to impugn Jones' character in connection with a registration statement he filed in May, 1935.

After filing of the statement, Jones charged in his suit, the defendants entered into "a common plan and conspiracy" to threaten to issue a summons directing him to show cause why a stop order should not be entered against him on grounds that his statement failed to comply with the requirement of the Securities Act.

Battle Looms On Salary Tax

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 24 Outstanding congressional lawyers today construed the Supreme Court's latest tax decision to mean that the court would reject President Roosevelt's proposal to tax salaries of 4,000,000 state, county and city employes by a simple law.

The Court, even though reconstituted and following a liberal trend, appeared to have definitely told the Administration and Congress that a constitutional amendment is necessary to accomplish this end.

The clash of opinions may precipitate another controversy between the New Deal and the Court during the next session of Congress.

The President's special message calling for enactment of a law imposing income taxes on all state, county and city employes and taxing state and local securities, now is before Congress.

In submitting his message, Roosevelt refused to accept past decisions of the Court. He contended a constitutional amendment is unnecessary.

RECEIVED BY LAWYERS

The court, in holding yesterday that employes of the New York Port Authority are subject to federal income tax, indicated that a regular state employe is not. It differentiated between an employe of a state business enterprise, such as the New York Port Authority, which operates bridges and tunnels, and a probate judge.

Justice Stone, delivering the majority opinion, said the court in the past held that federal and state governments have tax immunity from each other because it "was concerned with the continued existene of the states as governmental entities, and their preservation from destruction by the national taxing power."

Congressional lawyers who heard or read the court's opinion, were unanimous in their construction. The opinion was submitted to several congressional lawyers by International News Service.

"Every indication in the opinion is that there will be no change in the broad rule laid down by the court as far back as McCulloch against Maryland, and that the court would hold that a constitutional amendment is necessary to provide for full reciprocal taxation between federal and state governments," said Representative Walter (D.) of Pennsylvania, member of the House judiciary committee.

OPEN WAY ON TAXES

"It appears from the court's decision that a Constitutional amendment is necessary so far as taxation of state or local bonds and securities is concerned," said Representative Michener (R.) of Michigan, member of the same committee.

"Further, it appears that a Constitutional amendment would be necessary for the federal government to tax the income, for instance of county officers, or any officers who participate in carrying on functions of state governments as contemplated at the time the Constitution was adopted."

In holding that salaries of employes of the Port Authority are taxable, however, congressional lawyers said, the Court opened the way for taxation of all employes of governmental agencies engaged in some sort of business. Many expressed belief that states can levy income taxes against employes of the Tennessee alley Authority.

Test Case Seen In Milk Control

A test case which may result in lower milk prices for Boston loomed today after the rebellion of Miss Emma J. Olander, Byfield dairy operator, against federal government milk equalization fees.

Waging the battle against the Department of Agriculture single-handedly, Miss Olander won from Judge Walter L. Collins a temporary restraining order which bars Federal Market Administrator Samuel Tator from collecting the fees.

Should the restraining order be upheld, the New Deal's Agricultural Adjustment Administration control over New England milk producers will be broken, farmers said today.

It has brought soothing, comforting skin relief to millions—has aided in healing skin to normal, healthy condition in thousands of cases. Here are a few typical true experiences:

A prominent surgeon developed a skin condition on his hands, with a maddening itch that kept him awake nights. It prevented his operating for days at a time. He tried medicated Noxzema Skin Cream. It stopped the itching—brought quick soothing relief—enabled him to go on with his work. For years he has kept Noxzema on hand. Whenever the skin condition has recurred, Noxzema has brought soothing relief.

A telephone operator—her face was disfigured with acne. Her doctor prescribed Noxzema—reported that it helped clear up the condition—restoring the girl's normal looks.

An insurance man for years suffered from chafing. Each summer he had to lay up in bed for about two weeks. His doctor suggested Noxzema. For the first time in years he went through the summer without losing a day's work.

These are typical of scores of cases which illustrate how effective Noxzema usually is in the relief of ugly burning, itching skin irritations from external causes.

If you have similar skin troubles, try this popular medicated skin cream—see if it doesn't help you as it has thousands of others. Dainty, snow-white, greaseless, you can use Noxzema day and night without staining clothes. Get your trial jar today.

No State House O. K., No Jobs

The "Advisory Council" of leading citizens, appointed to supervise unemployment compensation, was told flatly by Lawrence P. Harrington, secretary of the Unemployment Compensation Commission, that "approval" of all appointments to jobs in the UCC "had to come from the State House."

That was the testimony today of Miss Amy Hewes, a member of the advisory council, professor of economics and sociology at exclusive Mount Holyoke College. Miss Hewes appeared as a witness before the joint legislative committee investigating political gift jobs in the UCC.

MEANING CONSTRUED

She testified that, by "from the State House" she and her fellow-members of the advisory committee understood Harrington to mean, not the civil service commission or the personnel office, but the governor's office.

Miss Hewes said that Harrington made his statement at a meeting of the advisory council at which he had been asked to be present.

Miss Hewes was the second member of the advisory council to testify during the day concerning the council's helplessness to do any supervising, or even any advising, in connection with the UCC.

WHY COUNCIL FAILED

Thomas H. Carens told the legislative committee the council has failed to function because:

"I guess it is just a case of everybodys' business being nobody's business."

Former chairman of this "advisory council" for two years was President-Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University. Present chairman is Dr. Henry W. Holmes, dean of the Harvard School of Education.

PLANNED TO RESIGN

"I had planned to resign," he told the legislative committee, "but I hadn't got around to it—much to my dismay this morning."

He was asked whether he read the law on unemployment compensation after being appointed to the "advisory council." He replied he "read part of it."

"You realize that as a member of the council you had certain responsibilities?" Attorney Warren Patten, counsel for the legislative committee, asked.

"Owing to the chaotic conditions of the council, it was hard to determine what we were supposed to do," Carens replied.

"The law says you have investigatory powers," Patten persisted.

'But the law didn't give us even a 5-cent piece to carry them out," Carens retorted.

The "advisory council," Carens testified, had difficulty even in getting up to the 14th floor offices of the Unemployment Conpensation Commission at 1 State street.

When he and other members of the "advisory council" got into an elevator and told the elevator man to take them up to the 14th floor, Carens related, they were "kicked off" at the second floor.

The "advisory council," Carens said, met—what few times it did meet—in a small, 10-foot-square room, so small that some of the 9 council members had to sit on the table, and others on window sills.

Asked if he, as a member of the council, had heard of discontent among unemployment compensation claimants, and if he had heard of political appointments to jobs in the UCC, Carens admitted he had. His only knowledge in this direction, however, he said, was what he read in the newspapers.

"Has the council carried out its duties?" Attorney Patten asked.

"I should say emphatically not," Carens replied.

DEFENSE WITNESS—Former Representative James J. Twohig appears at the contempt of court trial of Edmund L. Dolan and three others today. He was rebuked by Judge Fosdick for referring to the state's principal witness as "a stool pigeon."

ROME, May 24 (AP)—A usually reliable source today said Japan had contracted for an important number of Fiat bombing planes from the Italian Fiat aircraft manufacturers.

Dolan on Stand; Denies Hotel 'Plot'

WANTED MORE ROOM

According to the former treasurer, he took the hotel suite because the apartment of his sisters in Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, where he now lives, is small and there was more room needed for checking of records and preparing for the case.

"During the political campaign last year did you hear speeches and radio broadcasts regarding yourself?" Dolan was asked by his counsel, Timothy F. Callahan.

"Yes," the witness replied. "They were detrimental."

Q—Did you know the community was inflamed against you? A—Yes.

Dolan testified that he left Boston early last January for three months in Florida, returning to Boston April 3 or 4, when he learned the other case against him was about to go to trial.

TELLS OF PHONE CALLS

On April 5 he hired the Statler suite 1400-1402, he said, with David Rice, a friend, registering for him.

He had discussed hiring a detective agency if the jurors in the pending case were "qualified and not prejudiced," Dolan testified, but Attorney Callahan had advised against it, as it "probably wouldn't be a good thing to do."

Q—There were a great many telephone calls from Rooms 1400-1402? A—There were some made by others and some made when I was not there.

At no time, however, did he ever talk with any juror drawn for the April sitting of superior court, nor did he authorize any person to do so, Holan asserted.

TALKED WITH WARD

Q—Do you know a person named Mike Ward? A—Yes.

Q—Did you cal his home on the telephone? A—Several times.

Q—Did you go to his home and talk with him? A—Yes.

Q—Did you talk with him about making an investigation of this prejudice that existed? A—Yes.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said because of the political importance of the case he did not want to get mixed up in it.

Q.—Do you know Jimmy O'Keefe? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you talk with him recently? A.—I haven't talked with him in six months.

REFUTES DETECTIVE

Dolan's attention was called to testimony for the state by Private Detective Alfred Bligh, in which Bligh said he overheard a conversation from the hotel suite April 12, and someone said: "Have you heard from Jimmy?" with someone else replying: "O'Keefe is liable to put us all in the middle."

Q.—Do you recall any such conversation? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall a conversation such as this, "This thing is going to take more money"? A.—I never heard such a conversation.

TWOHIG REBUKED

Dolan denied knowing anyone named "Buckets" or "Johnny Allen" or "Coyle."

Q.—Did you ever see Dinsmore there? A.—No.

Q.—Was the name Dinsmore brought to your attention the week of the 11th or 18th of April? A.—It was.

Dolan said that Robert Gallagher "told of some story about Dinsmore."

Q—How did you react? A—I told Gallagher to have nothing to do with Dinsmore; the story was fantastic.

Q—Did you ever say anything about $16,000 in connection with this case? A—No.

A short time before Dolan took the stand today, Judge Frederick W. Fosdick and former Representative James Twohig, South Boston, had clashed, the ex-solon being rebuked for referring to a principal state witness as "a stool pigeon."

Two of the four defendants rested their cases a short time after the defense had opened.

These two were Quinn and Simpson, and they rested after four former state representatives had testified briefly.

Attorney Francis X. Hurley, counsel for Quinn, moved to have stricken out all testimony by Private Detective Alfred Bligh relating to Quinn, but Judge Fosdick overruled the motion.

The four ex-representatives, called as witnesses by Dinsmore, who acts as his own counsel, were Traffic Commissioner William P. Hickey, South Boston; Peter Fitzgerald, Dorchester, service representative for the Merchants' Credit Bureau, and James Twohig and John Reardon, both of South Boston and both now with the State Income Tax Division.

With Dinsmore questioning, Hickey said he had no recollection of ever conversing with Dinsmore in the presence of Private Detective Daniel J. Haley, one of the prosecution's chief witnesses.

A ripple of excitement came when Twohig took the stand and characterized Haley as "a stool pigeon," when Twohig was asked as to Haley's reputation for truth and veracity.

SAYS REPUTATION "BAD"

Judge Fosdick chided Twohig for his answer, declaring:

"That has nothing to do with his truth and veracity."

Twohig replied that he has known Haley "very well" and that his reputation is "bad."

"Knowing Mr. Haley, would you ever discuss anything in his presence?" Twohig was asked.

"I wouldn't discuss anything in his presence," he replied. "I never saw you and him together."

U. S. Maps Drive on Marihuana

WASHINGTON May 24 (INS)

The bureau of narcotics shortly will undertake a nationwide educational campaign to aid local law enforcing officials to stamp out marihuana traffic, it was learned today.

The bureau is preparing an information bulletin to be distributed to all law enforcing agencies showing the area in acreages and locale of the various hashish weeds and how to destroy them before they reach the consumer.

Meanwhile Harry Anslinger chief of the bureau is in Geneva as an unofficial observer at sessions of the opium advisory committee of the League of Nations created to stamp out illegal international narcotic traffic.

The bureau which has 250 field agents has received numerous reports of widespread use of the marihuana weed by high school students and has already ordered a sweeping eradication into a secret area in Westchester County, New York.

Mrs. Mary J. Hannaford of Braintree is living alone very much alone on a diet of canned foods.

And her philosophy of life, remote from any beat street, is that as an Mrs. Hannaford has set herself off from the outside world "for justice sake."

Cause of her "aloneness" are two suits brought against her by her husband, Thomas H. Hannaford. He is suing for annulment of their marriage and wants her ejected from the house.

Lord Weber has when the case goes to court will be heard in Quincy, and Mrs. Hannaford has lowered her relief herself against all invaders.

Long accustomed to the silence of the farmhouse, Mrs. Hannaford has stood a siege from the outside world. Food, gas, and oil deliveries are cut off, and she draws all the water she needs from the well.

Not only that but she is without heat, light, telephone and radio.

"I haven't eaten meat for three weeks," she said.

Surprised at pound count of 75 cans of string beans and 50 of corn, pork and beans, and soup, Mrs. Hannaford explained:

Stewart to Co-Star With Carole Lombard

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, May 24—Saw Jimmy Stewart dancing around with Merle Oberon, Norma Shearer and Ginger Rogers at the William Goetz party Saturday night, and he certainly looked as if he were having a good time. Jimmy deserves to have fun in his leisure moments, for he is one of the hardest working lads in our town.

He can write his own ticket, too, at all the studios, because every producer in town seems to have a story which suits the long, lanky Stewart down to the ground.

Louella O Parsons

Latest example of this is a David Selznick assignment. Jimmy moves over to the Selznick studio, July 1, to co-star with Carole Lombard in "Made For Each Other," adapted from Rose Franken's book, "Of Great Riches." He is now making "You Can't Take It With You" for Columbia and in September goes to Universal for "Service De Luxe," with Margaret Sullavan as his co-star.

• • •

"Dark Victory," the play which starred Tallulah Bankhead a few seasons ago, and which was subsequently bought by David Selznick, is now the property of Jack Warner, who bought it a few days ago. While everyone at the Warner studio is noncommittal, it's my idea this is intended for Miriam Hopkins who owes Warners a picture.

• • •

You can't beat the Rex Beach outdoors stories for drama, action and virility. And since westerns and outdoor adventure yarns are more popular at the boxoffice than problem plays or high pressure comedies it's easy to understand why Warner Brothers settled for the talkie rights to four Beach novels.

The first of these, "The Vengeance of Durand," was produced in 1919, "Flowing Gold" in 1923, "Barriers Burned Away" in 1924, and "Son of the Gods" made by First National in 1930 with Richard Barthelmess.

• • •

A line or two: Ann Pennington, whose dimpled knees were the talk of a nation when she twinkled in the Ziegfeld Follies some years ago, opens at Phil Selznick's cafe June 17 in company with Tamara, Jan Lubbe and Nick Cravat. . . . Janice Chambers, a twelve-year-old combination of Judy Garland and Deanna Durbin, is the newest M-G-M sensation. . . . David Selznick reported limping over the Riviera after he starred in the original "Peg of Limoko"—the English translation of which Walter Wanger is making with Charles Boyer under the title Algiers.

Hugh Herbert's fans are pulling for him in the negotiations for the grandpa in "Dr. Borrowed Time," in case a film company buys it. . . . Forty-one pictures working this week, which is a new high for the season.

Find Clues To Cancer Vaccine

(Copyright, 1938)

NEW YORK, May 24—Important clues that may lead to a successful method for vaccination against cancer were reported here today from the Toronto Out laboratory of Sir Frederick G. Banting, Nobel prize winner and world famous co-discoverer of insulin.

Sir Frederick co-workers, Jos. W. F. Bearns and H. J. Creech working at the Banting Institute of the University of Toronto, discovered a method for making cancer-resisting serums.

The essence of the method is that an injected protein substance is taken by a cancer precursor tissue. This produces a state of immunity to cancer.

The third serum of the series is obtained with the property of an immunity [illegible] and more against the particular cancer producing [illegible] and other cancer tissues.

SUCH A RUSH as there's been on these parts for a long time is being experienced by the broadcasters making ready to relay the music by Benny Goodman and his orchestra across the country tonight (WEEI) between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.

Benny and his boys are singing their "swing" out from the Ritz Carlton tonight, taking time out from the stage show schedule at the Keith Theater. Martha Tilton has some special "jitterbug" vocal going to do during the doings.

TWINKLERS galore from the Hollywood star firmament are expected to pass on parade before "mikes" at the "Alexander's Ragtime Band" picture preview being aired to coast from California late tonight (WAAB) as a 12:30 to 1 a. m. airing. Alice Faye Tyrone Power and Don Ameche, stars of the film, will lead the galaxy of screen notables for the networking.

STARTING OFF a new series of commentations (WEEI) is on order at the 6:45 to 7 o'clock stretch this evening, with Arthur M. Godfrey featured.

AL JOLSON has his doubts about the last "butler" in the movies, so Eric Blore and Arthur Treacher must battle it out at Al's air high-light (WEEI) between 8:30 and 9 o'clock tonight.

Nobody Is Fooled

The Editor Says: Tomorrow and Thursday [illegible] facilities of the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting Company will be used by Red leaders to broadcast the opening of the national convention of the Communist Party at Madison Square Garden, New York.

In accordance with the Stalinist new strategy, obviously designed to fool the unsuspecting and simple-minded, FAKE AMERICANISM will undoubtedly be made a vehicle to bootleg Communism into homes throughout the country.

Listeners will be told that the Communism Party embraces the doctrines and principles of Christ, Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln!

As the [illegible] Communist affiliation with Moscow [illegible] dictatorship of the proletariat, [illegible] and liquidation" of those that oppose the methods of Marx, Lenin and Stalin.

The whiskers of Bolshevism will be brushed aside for the present and the features of liberty substituted as a false face.

Fortunately, few — very few — Americans will be deluded. THE TIE THAT BINDS THE COMMUNIST TO MOSCOW IS TOO WELL KNOWN TO BE HIDDEN BY A VERBAL SMOKESCREEN.

Nonetheless, the two major radio networks of the nation are making a grave mistake when they open their microphones to an organization which strives for the overthrow of our form of government.

The result of this kind of subversive propaganda is that radio networks of the country will be and should be taken over by a portion United States government, if we should ever have one.

TWO IMPORTANT BILLS, identical in purpose but not in all their provisions, have been passed by the Senate and the House of Representatives establishing a "civil aeronautics authority" for the better administration of the aviation industry of the United States.

The proposed legislation creates for aviation what the Interstate Commerce Commission has been for the railroads. It would bring the industry, now subject to the regulations of three separate governmental bodies, under the direction of a SINGLE AUTHORITY.

The greatest difference between the two measures lies in the fact that the House bill provides that members of the authority, who are to be appointed by the President, may be removed by the President only for "INEFFICIENCY, NEGLECT OF DUTY, OR MALFEASANCE IN OFFICE."

Unfortunately, a similar restriction upon the presidential power of removal, as contained in the original Senate bill, HAS BEEN STRICKEN FROM IT BY AN ADMINISTRATION AMENDMENT.

This was a serious mistake. It ought not to become law. Therefore, conferees on the part of the Senate should agree to the House provision on this highly vital point. Let us have a central aviation authority. But let it be a NON-POLITICAL AUTHORITY.

Our Senators and Representatives owe it to the country, as well as to the industry, to give flying every wise encouragement.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

APPARENTLY the only way in which marriage ever changes a man is to change him from a lover into a cynic.

A man's weakest moment is when he's feeling pleased with himself; a woman's weakest moment is when she's feeling sorry for herself.

There is nothing more beautiful than man's loyalty to man. If you want to see him at his tenderest and most solicitous, watch him when he's helping a tipsy brother to negotiate a street crossing.

To the girl who marries a drink-addict, life is just a series of headaches; but to the one who marries a philanderer, it is a series of heartquakes. His heart is like a crosstown bus, in which there is always "room for one more."

What of Today, Tomorrow?

Aviation Provides Jobs for Thousands

From its first feeble but dogged struggles with a nucleus of [illegible] flyers struggling to keep the spark glowing, commercial aviation has now become a huge industry.

Better equipment, better fields, better communications systems, higher safety factors are represented by that droning ship you now see moving high up under the [illegible] sky.

And with the growth of aviation have come more jobs, and as aviation continues to grow, so will the number of positions be advanced.

By PAUL WHELTON

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

For many a person there has come [illegible] of a most awkward time, a call to be at some other and [illegible] point in a hurry, one that cannot be reached in time by train or motor car and one which lies on the route of no schedule or bus.

The only recourse is to charter a plane, and within a comparatively short period after receiving his call, the principal has arranged for a ship, has hastened to Boston Airport, points toward and is in the air—winging for his destination.

BUT BEHIND THAT SIMPLE TRANSACTION THERE HAVE BEEN COUNTLESS FACTORS, NUMEROUS EMPLOYMENT OPERATIONS, THE TURNING OF MILL WHEELS, GRINDING OF MACHINERY, THE NIGHT FLARES FROM BLAST FURNACES, TAPPING OF TYPEWRITERS . . . AND ALL THE REST.

Aviation has created [illegible] sands of jobs in America and throughout the world; has boomed and [illegible] others already created.

AND AS THE AVIATION INDUSTRY INCREASES SO WILL RELATED LINES INCREASE AND MORE JOBS RESULT.

Robert M. Love

At Boston [illegible] one of the East's most active [illegible] centers for [illegible] Inter-City Airlines.

[illegible] is Robert M. Love. [illegible] and Massachusetts Institute of Technology graduate who learned to pilot a plane [illegible] while he was in college.

Perhaps it was from this company that the individual summoned in a hurry chartered the ship that flew him away in the night.

As president, Robert Love explains some of the jobs behind that pilot as he headed the ship into the wind at the far end of the runway, gunned his motor experimentally then slowly drew open his throttle and was away with his passenger.

"As the company head I assume the managerial task of flying," said Love, "which means that most of my work is in the office here at the airport.

"MINE IS THE BUSINESS END OF FLYING. AS A BUSINESS MAN, I AM INTERESTED IN AVIATION CHIEFLY FROM A SALESMAN'S POINT OF VIEW.

"Inter-City Airlines is divided into five departments: sales; operations, which includes charter, renter and schools; hangar service, repair shop and the store.

"The sales department is the one which brings in the money, and the other departments hinge upon it.

"FOR INSTANCE, WE RENT PLANES AND TEACH STUDENTS HOW TO FLY IN ORDER TO CREATE MORE CUSTOMERS TO BUY PLANES.

"Our hangar service is a sort of garage or filling station. The repair shop explains itself. And the store is one which includes 5000 separate items pertaining to airplanes.

"The sales department is the biggest reason for our existing. In fact the operations department [illegible]

"Bringing in sales department brings in twice as much as any [illegible]

At present in the hangar [illegible] we have 22 [illegible] planes and [illegible] of course, we have transients.

"Even in aviation there is a call for paper mechanics, technicians, sheet metal craftsmen who [illegible] as well as a variety of [illegible] jobs.

"OF THE 16 PERSONS ON OUR STAFF HERE, ABOUT 15 ACTUALLY FLY. I GIVE MY OPPORTUNITIES TO PILOT PLANES WHEN I DEMONSTRATE THEM TO CUSTOMERS.

"A pilot [illegible] at the end of [illegible] and [illegible] school [illegible] the student, once trained, has an opportunity to earn from $3000 to $10,000 a year.

"Technicians in aviation earn [illegible] an average of from $4000 to $5500 a year.

LITTLE OF THESE JOBS BEHIND THE SCENES OF THE INDUSTRIES AND THE INDIVIDUALS AIDED BECAUSE OF THE STEADILY GROWING AVIATION INDUSTRY, IS REALIZED BY THE ORDINARY PERSON AS HE GAZES CASUALLY INTO THE SKY AND SEES AN AIRPLANE WINGING.

Somewhere a man is hauling on overalls preparatory to going on a night shift turning out castings for a new lot of airplane motors.

Somewhere a girl is snatching a hasty cup of coffee and a roll before she hastens to the plant where airplane cloth is being turned out.

Or a rubber plant has a new order for doughnut like airplane tires, a lumber company for straight, true wood, a hardware concern for wires, screws, bolts, nuts and fittings.

AVIATION ALSO HAS CREATED PRACTICALLY A NEW INDUSTRY FOR DESIGNING AND MANUFACTURING OF THE DELICATE AND INTRICATE INSTRUMENTS THAT NOW HAVE PLACE ON THE CONTROL BOARD OF THE MODERN SHIP.

The industry, from a start of but a comparatively few years back, is RAPIDLY GOING UP.

Girl About Town -:- by Marjorie McBride

A LOT OF old vaudeville jokes have become outmoded, come to think of it. The column is thinking especially of those ancient wisecracks about honeymoons at Niagara Falls. They no longer apply.

People seem to be spending their honeymoons anywhere else BUT! Cuba and Bermuda and the North Woods of Maine and the Canadian fishing and hunting grounds and abroad. The Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce will hate it, but bridal couples don't flock there as they did.

Marjorie McBride

They say that after John Roosevelt and Ann Clark are married at Nahant on June 18, they will travel in Europe. When Barbara Flint of the Social Register becomes Mrs. John J. Rowan, Jr., on June 25 they will motor through Canada.

Right now there are four couples out of the Blue Book spending their honeymoons in Bermuda. They are the former Frances Howell of Baltimore and T. Ferguson Locke of this city . . . the former Olivia Stone and F. S. Holmes . . . the former Polly Powers and Tyson Kimble . . . the former Lucy Stone and George Keyes. All were recent weddings.

This item was inspired by a bit of publicity recently received from the authorities at Niagara Falls, advising newlyweds not to look so bored if they wanted to avoid attention and comment. The advice is still good, whether they go to the Florida Everglades or Timbuctoo.

PHOTOGRAPHERS have business holidays, too. When the Press Photographers' Association has its annual ball at the Statler on Thursday night, members will take their cameras along.

Between dances, they will compete in speed contests. First man to get his picture gets the prize. And it will be a field night for the candid camera addicts, with nothing and nobody sacred.

A CANVASS recently made shows that about one-half of the girls graduating from Radcliffe this summer have already chosen their careers.

Ten will be married immediately and that takes care of that.

A few of the richer ones will travel or stay home for a year. Nine already have jobs. Ten will do post-graduate work. Twenty will train for secretarial work. Twelve have been interviewed by prospective employers who are confident they will get the positions.

Plenty of the girls are very glad and not worrying much.

FOR SUMMER WARDROBES Jordan Marsh is showing "little wraps for big evenings" . . . finger-tip capes and cuffed rayon jackets . . . to be worn with your best evening gowns. A "four piece" ensemble in cool crisp white starkleen features a print dress with bolero and bolero skirt at Kennedy's dress shop. Slattery's exclusive clinging vine dress for juniors comes in washable spun rayon. Crocheted vines follow the shoulder seams down the front of the slim frock. For an all-round hat Stearns presents a rough straw sailor in that natural shade that harmonizes with any costume. These items are priced under $5.

Are We Strong? -:- by Hugh S. Johnson

WASHINGTON—Echoes from the big Army air show are rumored complaints from Army air officers that their true excellence is suppressed by "War Department orders." The idea is that if the public were informed of the accuracy and striking power of recent aircraft, it would put all other forms of defense into relative disfavor.

General Johnson

According to this view the Navy wouldn't get its great cruisers, its fighting ships, the Army would have trouble with its supply program and the Air Force might become a separate Cabinet Department on equal terms with the Army or Navy.

There is no doubt that Army Air Corps progress has been marvelous in range, speed and carrying capacity of ships as well as almost unbelievable accuracy in bombing practice at great altitudes—over 20,000 feet. It seems incredible that the War Department would suppress news of any of these achievements except such as might reveal secret methods or, in particular cases, to check up on results of an experiment before releasing it in fragments.

APART from whatever remaining reluctance there may be in the General Staff to a separate Air Corps, it is no particular secret that the Army believes its air progress to be relatively as great as that of the Navy. It can see no reason why the Navy should be favored in air appropriations of a ratio of planes. It does not see why the Navy needs or wants so many seaplanes.

The just basis for gossip and rumor is imperfect city on the subject. It may take to hamper an adequate defense program. Congress is always fond of what the President calls amateur strategists. The idea of some new magic instrument which will change the fact of war has haunted the whole of history. Propaganda to the effect that we can rely solely on airplane defense can be very persuasive and spectacular and very dangerous.

The greatest possible and honest propaganda would be military and air officers' free talking about what military and air can and cannot do.

THE CONSENSUS of the best military and naval thought has been that aircraft is decisive but far from being exclusive as of yet. As yet, stable and dependable aircraft in all weather for reliable on either sea or land. If these recent maneuvers have shown anything to modify that view the worst thing the War Department or any other government department could do would be to suppress it.

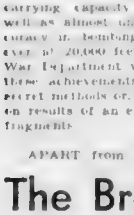
The Brighter Side -:- by Damon Runyon

"TAKE plenty of cheese and crackers with you," is the advice, as reported in the public prints, of a well informed gentleman to Americans contemplating a trip to Europe this summer.

The implication is that travelers on the Continent may find themselves shy of grub when the boys over there start popping at one another, which nearly everybody seems to regard as inevitable.



Damon Runyon

We have much better advice than that. It is stay home. That is, stay in the United States. Spend that dough set aside for distribution in Europe in taking a peek at this country, which is really very interesting.

Get an automobile and glide over the magnificent highways east and west and north and south and see what is going on in the greatest nation on the face of the earth.

Go down to Oklahoma and see Tulsa, which is more colorful and significant than London, or Brussels, or Berlin, or Moscow, and mingle with people who are not leaping in fear at their own shadows. Go out to Texas and see Fort Worth and Dallas and Houston and San Antonio, and in the latter city be sure and visit the Alamo and learn there the lesson of an Americanism that felt that this country was worth dying for.

Get on one of those streamliners and go out to California and see a land of fabulous area and beauty and promise.

Tour New England and view its staunch old cities, and down the Mississippi to where New Orleans greets it over the delta and across to Florida to see the towers of Miami glistening in the sun.

Ah, yes, you will find that times are not so good in many places. You will hear complaints about things that should not be.

But by grab and by gravy nowhere will you find a people shivering in their shoes because of a hostile army at their borders.

You will find a free people who can and do say what they please. Who can and do pick their own rulers. A free people who may be lacking just now a lot of the comforts they used to have, but who look hopefully to the future, and who have not lost their faith in the United States of America.

NOW we are well aware that what we have written here will sound provincial and what they call rotarian to the sophisticates—especially the type that is generally contemplating a trip to Europe at this season of the year.

To them you are provincial and Rotarian any time you put in a plug for your own country, or for movements like "Buy American," or for anything that suggests you may have a bit of pride and love for your native land. We think travel in Europe is a nice thing for those who can afford it. However, as against the prospects of a travel diet of cheese and crackers we will take America. We can always do better here.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'VE berated on tiny Horace Cleaf . . . she's moving her car—and all America is smiling today.

For a week the nation had grieved for that bereaved young couple in Chicago. Dr. and Mrs. Herman Cleaf. A BABY DAUGHTER BORN WITH ONE CANCEROUS EYE . . . "SHALL THEY CELEBRATE BLINDING HER FOR LIFE OR LET HER LIVE ON FOR CERTAIN DEATH?" Love never faced a crueler fight.

One dares not think of what those days of decision must have meant. White nights of struggle, battered bleeding prayers against the dark answering dark. But "the step has been taken at last." And now whether little Horace stays or goes, there has come, out of awful anguish, a precedent which may ease the suffering of untold millions and lift all human motivation to a higher plane.

Elsie Robinson

There is only one thing greater than love . . . and that is the courage to put one's personal devotion aside for the sake of the immortal soul we love. Life holds no ghastlier impasse than such a question, for it nearly always comes at a time when tears and fear are already overwhelming with grief unable to make even a simple decision. Here is no less than a desperate dilemma.

• • •

THOSE who have gone through the travail know all too well the deadly danger of that hour. How now the frantic heart like some maddened animal will grip convulsively, refusing safer aid—crushing sometimes the very thing it would give its life to save.

And many a mental graves we have through crippled years, thinking—"IF ONLY I HAD DONE THIS THING . . . OR NOT DONE THAT!"

At some time, in those nightmare days, there was a point where mangled spirit lost its power to act . . . and life became one ruinous haunting stream.

But just before the darkness closed they fought and held to sanity . . . and did the noblest thing that a torn heart or gravelled brain can do. STEPPED BACK AND LAID THEIR HELPLESS BABE IN GOD'S STEADIER HANDS.

OFTEN A SINGLE ACT HAS MOVED THE HUMAN SPIRIT FORWARD COUNTLESS YEARS. And no act ever took within it greater potencies for growth than the one which these tortured parents made when they appointed twelve men to decide their baby's fate.

• • •

ALREADY the "life or death" committee of twelve has become historic. Dr. of Chicago's leading eye and brain specialists . . . two wise and beloved rabbis, Drs. A. B. Altman and Louis Sober, spiritual advisers to the Cleafs . . . those men were entrusted the decision which those who loved the baby best felt they could no longer make.

Upon 12 men representing God's infinite mercy and pity and love, they placed this burden. Only and utterly upon their conscience, rather than upon their own desires and needs. How wise we are not only of this decision but of the manner of its reception and carrying out!

And this may well be the beginning of a new story and for human conduct in great emotional crises, when vital issues confronted and agony might be saved if men and women, dazed and demoralizing strain, could turn to "such wise counsellors" committees of men who represent the best that we know of reason and calm wisdom in medicine or law or religion saying "Thy Will Be Done."

Instinctively the mad sweep of pain across the face of that other heart-wrung young Hebrew who on His hour of utter agony, cried "LET THIS CUP PASS . . . LET THIS CUP PASS . . . BUT IF IT MAY NOT PASS . . . THY WILL BE DONE."

They took the hard but right way, these two young souls. In their bitter hour they put themselves aside . . . sought the highest help they knew . . . and cried "THY WILL BE DONE."

Woman Is Expert Keeper of Secrets

If you think it's true that women can't keep secrets you ought to meet Gertrude E. Maloney.

In the [illegible] that functions as [illegible] under her titian coiffure there are stored secrets enough to turn state and city upside down should she ever start publishing her memoirs.

"INSIDE" STORIES

For 17 years Miss Maloney has been indictment clerk in the office of successive [illegible] of Suffolk county.

During most of that time she has also acted as stenographer for Suffolk county grand juries.

She has heard the "inside" stories of famous crimes and famous graft probes—stories seldom if ever told in open court.

But Miss Maloney is a secret-keeper by profession. A graduate of Portia Law school, she learned her legal ethics early.

DYNAMITE THERE

Now her discretion and trustworthiness have won her a new assignment: that of keeping [illegible] of proceedings of Attorney-general Paul A. Dever's "blue ribbon" grand jury, called to probe alleged racketeering in Revere.

The [illegible] expected to be [illegible] political and [illegible] in this investigation.

Some of what the grand jury will hear may reach the public through the courts and through the newspapers.

But a lot of it won't.

Miss Gertrude Maloney, however, will take it all down with pencil and notebook.

Her written record of proceedings will go into carefully guarded archives of the [illegible] to be [illegible]

There's nothing old-maidish or bookish or [illegible] Miss Maloney's appearance [illegible]

She looks like the kind of girl you'd like to [illegible] if you were [illegible]

Here's one woman who can keep a secret—in fact keep 'em by the hundreds. She's Gertrude E. Maloney, indictment clerk in district attorney's office. She's held her job 17 years. She's taken data on 200 murder cases and knows "inside stuff" on scores of other crimes. All her secrets are in that notebook she carries, and they'll stay there. She's now recording facts in Revere racket inquiry.

Shower Honors Margaret Tyng

By BETTY ALDEN

MARGARET TYNG has more than enough ingredients to make the proverbial bride's biscuits . . . after the shower her friends gave her yesterday afternoon to stock the pantry shelves of her future home with tasty and practical groceries . . .

Mrs. Bradford Price, the former Jane Kelley, was hostess at the party in her Cambridge apartment, in honor of Margaret, who will become the bride of Ralph Lawson, Jr., on Saturday . . . After the guests had assembled, the bride-to-be was presented with a miniature pantry shelf, ingeniously made by the hostess out of an orange crate decorated with bridge paper and lilies of the valley . . . the miniature shelves were packed with gayly wrapped jars of jelly, hors d'oeuvres and a well rounded assortment of good things with which Margaret can feed her husband until she masters the mysteries of the cook book . . .

Among the guests who showered their best wishes, as well as their presents, upon the prospective bride, were Mrs. Jeffrey Short (Barbara Allen), a recent bride, and her sister, Betty Allen . . . Also Ruth Burchard, Barbara Glidden, Jeanne Maddux and Dora Foss of Brookline . . .

Margaret's wedding takes place Saturday afternoon in St. John's Church, Jamaica Plain, with a reception at the Loring Greenough House . . . where the bride-to-be, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Griswold Tyng of Jamaica Plain, made her debut at a luncheon in the autumn of 1934 . . . She has since studied at Smith College . . .

Mr. Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lawson of Salem, is a nephew of Miss Sylvia Benson and Mr. George Benson, members of an aristocratic old Salem family . . . Noble and Greenough and Harvard and his Alma Mammies and he belongs to Hasty Pudding, Institute of 1770 and Phoenix S. K. Clubs . . .

ALL SET TO COOK—Margaret Tyng will have a well-stocked pantry in her new home following her marriage to Ralph Lawson, Jr., on Saturday. Friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Bradford Price yesterday and showered the bride-to-be with pantry goodies. Here you see Miss Tyng admiring some of the gifts.

Perkins-Maynard Ceremony on June 25

KATHLEEN ELIZABETH MAYNARD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Maynard, Jr., of Baltimore, formerly of Dedham, will don bridal laces and satins on June 25 to become the bride of Charles Marvin Perkins, son of Mrs. Frederick H. Perkins of Providence . . . Baltimore's Church of the Redeemer will be the scene of the wedding, with a reception at the Lombardy place home of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard . . .

Kathleen has invited her future sister-in-law, Barbara M. Perkins of Providence, to be her maid of honor . . . and her own sister, Nancy Howell Maynard, will be flower girl, and only other attendant . . . Guild Devere of Cranston, R. I., will perform best man duties and serving as ushers will be Kirby Fritz, Elwin Gammons and Harvey H. Dwight, all Providence friends of the bridegroom; together with his cousin Douglass Mabee of Saratoga, N. Y. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. D. Howell Maynard of Dedham, uncle and aunt of the bride-to-be, are going down to Baltimore for the wedding festivities and other members of the family planning to attend are her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick K. Johnston of Toronto, Colonel and Mrs. William P. Mulock of Toronto, Major Bertram K. Johnston of Jamaica, B. W. I., and Madame Dugas of Paris, the bride's great aunt . . .

Kathleen made her debut in Boston in 1934 after graduating from Beaver Country Day School . . . and since moving to Baltimore has transferred her Junior League membership from Boston to the Oriole City . . . Her future bridegroom attended Syracuse University and is president of the Rhode Island Aeronautical Society . . . He also belongs to the Warwick Country Club, Warwick Neck, R. I., the Lions Club of Providence and Beta Theta Pi fraternity . . . The couple will live in Providence . . .

Emmanuel To Hold Gay Class Week

Activities get underway Saturday afternoon, June 4, with the presentation of "Pride and Prejudice" in the college auditorium by members of the dramatic club. Musical day, class day and commencement follow in rapid succession, all climaxed by the senior promenade at the Hotel Somerset Friday evening, June 7.

Margaret McCarthy of Brookline, who was responsible for the gala promenade in junior days, has been chosen again to act as chairman. Katherine Burke, president of the senior class, will head the reception committee.

Other important tasks in planning the event have been entrusted to Margaret Cahill of Arlington, Anna Curran of Lynn, Helen Hughes of Brighton, Mary Cronin of South Boston and Rita Quane of Brighton.

Class Day on Monday, June 6, is being arranged by Frances Connaughton of Dorchester, Mary Flannery of Marlboro, Rita Walsh of Hamilton, Catherine McNally of Hudson and Dorothy Mc[illegible] of Chelsea.

Alumnae are taking active part in the week. Their get-together is arranged for Saturday afternoon, June 4, with a dinner at the Hotel Touraine.

The formal closing of the week comes on June 15 with dinner scheduled at the Parker House roof. Eleanor Sullivan of Boston is chairman the committee. Directors of other groups include Katherine Hoar of Dorchester, Mary Groden of Cambridge, Isabel Maguire of Somerville, Dorothy Mullin of Winchester, Mrs. John J. Tobin of South Boston and Etta Robinson of Somerville.

World Trip Talk Tonight

Nautical affairs have been absorbing the interest of Mr. and Mrs. Philip K. Brown of Chestnut Hill, who spent the week-end on a deep sea fishing trip off the Buzzards Bay with Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Smith of Brookline.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Brown will view moving pictures of a thrilling nautical experience when Captain Irving Johnson lectures about his recent round-the-world trip aboard the Yankee at a program sponsored by the Florence Crittenton League.

Following the lecture they will assist Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Wilbur Grant of Beacon street, in receiving a few close friends at a small reception in honor of Captain and Mrs. Johnson.

Guest of Honor At Recital

Mrs. William Lowe Bullock of Brookline and Harvard will be guest of honor Friday evening at a recital to Faith Lewis, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Chiffon Pie With Rhubarb Is Unusual

By MARTHA LEE

We do keep our promises. Here are the recipes today for the Pineapple Parfait Cake and the Rhubarb Chiffon Pie. This promise was made to the ladies in attendance at our Cooking School last evening.

A lady requested a recipe for making a chiffon pie with rhubarb. Somehow we hadn't enough of this before and decided to try it. So here's the recipe we used for a large 10-inch pie plate, and what a success it was!

We gave that recipe a week ago today.

RHUBARB CHIFFON PIE

2 cups rhubarb cut in fine pieces
½ cup sugar
4 eggs separated
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons gelatin
¼ cup cold water
½ teaspoon salt
Pink or red coloring to suit
Whipped cream

Let rhubarb stand [illegible] with 1 cup sugar. Turn [illegible] and cook [illegible] minutes. Add gelatin soaked in cold water. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into baked pastry shell. Chill. Garnish with whipped cream.

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT CAKE

½ cup new triple creamed shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 egg yolk
1 cup sugar
2 cups sifted flour
(cake flour preferred)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup canned pineapple juice
½ cup water
4 egg whites

[illegible]

PINEAPPLE PARFAIT FROSTING

2 egg whites unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
3 tablespoons pineapple juice
1 teaspoon light corn syrup
1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind

Hankie Makes Halter

A SAUCY sailor goes down to the briny deep wearing a sailor song halter with her cool white suit. The designer Brumel captained this new silk square in red, white and blue—with not-so-ancient mariners and their gals joining hands to encircle the border. Inner circles spell out the hasson's delight, "Asleep in the Deep," and the lilting lament "Oh Bring Back My Bonnie" is in the other circle. It will make a grand sun-back halter with shorts for swimming or lounging, too. It's at a Boston shop for a dollar; for shopping information, phone Aanice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston American.

He Suggests She Go Out With Other Men

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Keep busy and happy. "Sorry," and probably the end of the year will find things worked out to your satisfaction. The young man may come back obviously to claim you, or you will have discovered this was not love, that someone new is the one for you!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

He is in the Army and doesn't make very much money. And when he was leaving the other night he told me he wouldn't see me for two or three months, and he suggested I go out with other young men in the mean time. This was a shock to me because I really do care about him.

He will be mustered out of the Army in another year and has a good job awaiting him. And he says there can be nothing settled between us until that time.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY:

When a man urges a girl to go with others she should take that advice exactly as it is meant. He doesn't want to tie her down and prevent her from meeting other men. It's the square thing to do and a sensible guy will accept the decision and not waste several years [illegible] uncertainty.

Sophisticated Shower Gift

DEAR ARLINE: I'm sure you know all the exciting new things that come out. Could you suggest a shower gift for one of the prettiest girls I know? She's the kind that always does the most unusual things and knows [illegible] Brookline.

DEAR CATHIE: There's nothing much more entrancing than a new crackle bottle of cologne in a squarish silver box that looks like mirror. It's the first time ever that a certain famous French fragrance is available to be used lavishly all over one! It's spicy, exhilarating and haunting—all at once. I can't think of a better aura for a new bride! You can be sure the globe of silvery crackle glass with a very tall, slender neck swathed in silver will have a place of honor on her dressing table. Phone me for the name of the cologne (something over two dollars) LIBerty 4000, or write again, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. You'll undoubtedly [illegible] one for yourself too!—Arline Gould.

Tommy Dorsey's "LOVE IN SWINGTIME"

Conservatory Girl Rebukes Dorsey

What Has Happened

Tommy Dorsey and his band are about to leave the South Station after a Harvard engagement. There, a collegian, known as Biff Brown, had created a sensation with his swingy clarinet when he was allowed to do a number with the Dorsey unit. Biff had begged the maestro to give him a job with the band, but Dorsey urged him to stay in college. It developed that Biff's girl, Harriet Cardale, a Conservatory of Music student, is much opposed to swing and Biff's ambition in that direction. As Dorsey is about to leave the South Station, a pretty girl approaches him.

CHAPTER 2

By Tommy Dorsey and George D. Lottman

I was completely taken aback. Of course, every performer is accustomed to these [illegible] from fans. I remember Rudy Vallee telling me of an incident in Philadelphia when his coat was torn to shreds as he went out the stage door. Many actors and bandleaders ever make it a practice to wear old clothes when they leave a theater and have to plow through a mob of fans.

But this excited young lady seemed vaguely familiar to me. She didn't look as though she belonged to the tribe of signature hunters, although she was clutching my arm rather tightly.

She looked more like a typical co-ed, with her innocent blue eyes, peaches and cream complexion and simple, yet smart, college-type attire . . . She introduced herself abruptly: "My name, Mr. Dorsey, is Harriet Cardale."

"Weren't you at Harvard last night?" I said quietly, trying to shake off her arm.

"Well, if I was," she retorted bitterly, "it wasn't to listen to the swing. Don't think I've come to throw any flowers at your feet, Mr. Dorsey. As far as I'm concerned, your so-called music is nothing but noise and cacophony."

I pretended not to mind her attack.

"Is there anything I can do for you? You seem awfully upset," I said politely.

"I'm sorry to seem if my hatred got on your nerves so much. But I must admit I am surprised. Most boys and girls like my orchestra. In fact, we play especially for them."

IT'S BIFF BROWN!

"I don't care about the others," she exploded, stamping her little foot into the gravel near the railroad tracks.

"I'm only interested in one person. And you've certainly managed to spoil something I've been building and dreaming about for three years."

"I'm afraid I still don't understand what you're getting at," I said, trying hard not to lose my temper.

"I'm getting at Biff Brown," she replied.

"Oh, the clarinet player," I said, beginning to see daylight through the fog. I was now wondering how I would ever get myself out of this mess.

"Yes, the boy who played with your band last night. Why did you let him play? For three years I've been trying to make him give up jazz and all his wild ideas about Broadway and swing bands. Now you go and give him a chance to show off. And on top of everything else you tell him that he's a good musician."

"Biff has a lot of talent for his age," I declared warmly.

"Talent?" Harriet said, scornfully. "Talent for what? Talent for noise—for cheap, vulgar, detestable noise, that's fit only for the depraved human beings if you can call them human."

"They're animals, the lowest of the low. And you want to drag my Biff into all this. Why don't you leave him alone? Let him do his work in school and lead our own, peaceful life."

She stopped to catch her breath. Before she could begin her tirade again, I said, "Before you say any more, young lady, permit me to inform you that, although I think Biff is one of the finest young swing music fans I have ever heard, I did everything I could to discourage him from leaving school and making swing his profession."

She tossed her head back to get her hair out of her eyes.

"But he told me last night that he has made up his mind to leave college and go to New York," she said.

DORSEY RETIRES

"If he does, it will be against my advice."

"If he does it, I'm afraid it will break up our friendship and all the plans we are making," she said sadly, nervously playing with the buttons on her blouse.

My bandsmen were at the gate, holding their satchels and valises, smoking their cigarettes.

If only I could calm this poor girl's fears, I would feel as though I had accomplished some good. But what could I possibly say to her? She seemed to be so thoroughly unsophisticated.

Fortunately, I had been born and brought up in the small town of Shenandoah, Pennsylvania, so I understood the feeling of many country folk toward jazz.

"Just why do you hate popular music?" I asked her kindly. "After all, there are many [illegible] of good music [illegible] Beethoven's symphonies."

I [illegible] since I was a child and I study [illegible] music. I [illegible] My [illegible] and consider the first symphony orchestra ever heard [illegible] years ago. And it was played first violin in the New York Philharmonic Symphony. Most of [illegible] They [illegible] good music [illegible] and I love Mozart. Honestly, I get sick when I hear a note played or a band out of tune. I [illegible] Maybe [illegible] don't think I [illegible] to see one [illegible]

THE CLASSIC VIEW

No [illegible] But if you only [illegible] and I think you're the [illegible] I would rather hear [illegible] to the most classical [illegible] I realize that music is a [illegible] to come between two people. You can have your own [illegible] and half the time I enjoyed you couldn't be happy."

She [illegible] and [illegible] days. No [illegible] to much [illegible] interested.

I could never [illegible] my life with a person whose heart was devoted to such [illegible] everything beautiful in music. It's like throwing mud at a beautiful painting."

I sorted [illegible] There remained only a few seconds to show this girl how wrong she was.

The inspiration of swing at its best, exemplified so vividly by the enchanting Hildegarde, left Harriet completely cold . . .

Alligator, Hi! Hi!

I would make another attempt.

"Swing is not really the horrible, sacrilegious monster that you imagine it is," I explained.

"Many people feel the way you do. It's true that a person who is brought up on classical music often finds it hard to understand this modern form of music that we call swing.

"But swing says the same things that Beethoven and Brahms said, only in a different way. It says these things with different rhythms and different accents, but the fundamental emotions remain the same. As a musician you ought to understand that.

"You may be surprised when I tell you that my father played in a symphony orchestra and that I studied classical music [illegible] many years.

"Just as there is [illegible] difference between Bach and Beethoven because they lived in different centuries, so there is a difference between Beethoven and the swing music of today. The composer, the instrumentalists, and the styles have changed, but the essential qualities of good music remain.

"If you could only forget your prejudices long enough to listen carefully to real swing music, you would change your mind, young lady."

A GET-OFF MAN

She was still shaking her head firmly. I realized she was as obstinate in her way as Biff was in his. I put my hand out and touched her shoulder.

"I wish there were time," I said, "so we could discuss this problem more deeply. It is very close to me, because I am always coming into contact with well-meaning men and women who say the same things you do. But my train will pull out in a few seconds.

"Before I get on that train I want to leave one word of caution with you. And I want you to listen carefully."

She stopped shaking her head and lifted her eyes to mine. She was sobbing softly.

"Biff," I said, "has a touch of [illegible] of the make-up. If he didn't have this temperament he couldn't have played the way he did last night. Every great swing [illegible] I have ever known has had it. When it is a question of just another Joe Blow. With it he is what we call a bit of a [illegible]

Commodity Price Views Improving

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

One thing which is being brought more and more forcibly to the attention of the better informed investors and observers continued in their travels through the financial district here definitely improved.

While the commercial side of such well known averages as the Dow-Jones industrial average and the rails continued to show a disconcerting if not unexpected lethargy, the commodity price views showed a decided improvement.

Right now the Dow-Jones industrials are being pulled up by such issues as Texas Corp. and Coca-Cola, while the rails are being held down by Atchison, Union Pacific and New York Central. It is well to remember that stocks do not always move with commodities and that sometimes the two move in opposite directions. Right now, however, the commodity trend is definitely upward.

Haney Warns All Are Headed To WPA Rolls

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, May 24—Another week of stagnant business has passed me in which, on the whole, the condition may be described as sagging.

Even the weather has been against business of late. Some crops [have] benefit by the cold rainy [per]iod but men's straw hats have not been blossoming and the movement of seasonal merchandise has been slowed.

Along with the cold snaps, there came the chill of renewed efforts in Washington to put through the so-called "reform" measures that have been so depressing. Even the government reorganization bill may be shunned.

• • •

You may believe that American business men big and little, are all [ex]hausted or bad. You may be sure that the administration is not [ex]perimenting it does, except [in] a few cases, to put the Supreme Court or to [ha]m Congress into a [bet]ter stamp.

But surely we can all agree that [the] continuance of [un]certain business [con]ditions which make it impossible for business men to go ahead.

Hence: we had enough ill to [be] [ex]pected [of] waste and [im]provident [ex]penditures [in] the WPA as a regular part of our economic life and when [the] time comes we will all be on [the] way to the WPA rolls.

Ominous are the recent words of Homer Martin, CIO leader: "The WPA must more and more be regarded as an industry in itself, not a form of charity." By this, he means that he proposes to "organize" them and collect dues.

Then these government [em]ployees will strike for higher wages and you and I will have to pay more taxes as a result.

Finally some dictator's "government" will have to clamp down on [us] for the sake of maintaining order. Then we will find ourselves [re]turning around in regiments, [los]ing our democracy and our free-dom [and] [pro]sperity.

A MYSTERY MAN IS FOLLOWING the Chicago Cubs. While they were giving the Bees a farewell licking by 4 to 1, a hatless, crickle-haired gent of some 40 summers sat behind the backstop and made cuff notes, drew sketches and squinted professionally at the Chicagoans' antics.

The man has been moving with the Cubs from town to town, living at the same hotels and mingling with the boys. He never sits in the same spot during ball games and sometimes pops up to snap a few feet of movies, or make some notebook memoes.

During pre-game warmup Manager Charley Grimm was telling about the phantom. "He's some sort of a psychologist," ventured Grimm through his eating tobacco, "For some reason he's investigating us." No, he didn't know the guy's name, or who he worked for, or for what reason. "But Clarence Howland knows," said Grimm, shouting to a dim figure in the back of the grandstand, "Hey Caa-larence."

Rowland was even more vague. "His name is Jack Sterrett," said the Cubs' scout. "He just writes down a lot of stuff about nervous reflexes and muscular impulses." But why he did it was a mystery. "There he is now," pointed Rowland, indicating an overcoated figure behind the chicken wire screens.

Men Under Microscope

THE MAN WAS MIDDLE AGED, LEAN and clear-eyed. "Sit down," he invited, swinging easily into his theme. The story he told failed to jibe with the befuddlement which Grimm and Rowland professed. Prof. Sterrett said he was on the Cub's payroll, was hired in fact by Mr. P. K. Wrigley as a consulting psychologist to measure the capabilities of the players. He was travelling about with them he said, to collect physio-chemical data and determine what made the men click, have slumps, co-ordinate and what not. His information, when gathered, would be examined by Wrigley and then filed in the archives of Illinois University.

"Doc" Painter's Experiments

ONCE BEFORE, IN MY MEMORY, A physicologist tried out his new fangled notions on a major league ball club. That was with the old Braves in the goofy season when Judge Emil Fuchs attempted to manage the club and imported a combination osteopath, Swedish massuer and psychiatrist named Earl Painter.

Painter was absolute dictator of the health and deportment of the men at all times. But he wasn't satisfied with keeping them fit. He lectured the athletes about batting on the veranda of the Vinoy Park Hotel, showing them the correct method of rotating their torso at the waist. He used Rabbit Maranville as his dummy to illustrate the center of torsion and had the little bantam pirouette and gyrate for hours in the evening while he harangued the bewildered players on how the portions of the body functioned to attain utmost power with velvet smoothness.

The result was a riot. The men broke up into various schools of thought, spending their spare time in swiveling their middles and doing [illegible]

Painter Had the Last Word

"DR." PAINTER, AS HE STYLED HIMSELF, conceived the notion of balancing carbo hydrates with proteins. So he lectured on that, causing Heinie Mueller to complain, "I never ate a protein in me life an I ain't gonta."

The "Doc" tried to enforce a regimen of greens for Tuesdays, liquids for Wednesdays and solids for Thursdays, and so on in rotation. But he might as well have attempted to empty the waters of the Gulf with a dipper. For the Vinoy Park boasted a menu of fancy foods as long as one's leg, and the athletes defied Painter to make them live on wind and imagination when there were Stone Crabs, Fillet Mignon, Sweetbreads au beurre and similar culinary fripperies on order. He could tinker with their batting, but he couldn't fool with the food.

But the "Doc" was a man of resources. He convinced Judge Fuchs that his men were eating themselves out of shape. What they needed, said he, was life in a modest hotel where the simplest victuals were served. So he got them moved to a waterfront tavern which looked like a brick factory and dished up farm fare. Then Painter got bamboozled with the New York Yankees and went to live at the Pen Cesar Hotel where cuisine encouraged gluttony and the viands were supervised by a battery of French chefs.

So psychologists in baseball have been pretty much a washout and it is unlikely that Prof. Jack Sterrett will revolutionize the Cubs this summer for all his pencil sketching, note jotting and movie taking. Maybe the professor has the formula for that homerun Gabby Hartnett hit against the left field whiskey signs yesterday.

Ouimet Wins In British 3rd Round

Defeats Tweddell, 4 and 3

TROON, Scotland, May 24 (AP)—Picking up one more hole after building up a three-hole margin on the first nine, Francis Ouimet Boston veteran, and J. S. Walker, Cornell team captain, today reached the third round of the British amateur golf championship with a 4 and 3 triumph over Dr. William Tweddell.

Ouimet took the first two holes and picked up another hole in the [illegible] to round the turn three up on Dr. Tweddell. He continued to win [illegible] Tweddell [illegible] with 2 up again at the fifth, losing an 18-footer for a deuce. A similar one [illegible] the sixth hole won the next two and won 3 and 36.

Nick Wall Names Seabiscuit to Win | George Holland Dinner Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

NICK WALL, a former Boston boy who rode Earl Sande's Stagehand to victory in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, told me at Suffolk Downs that Seabiscuit will win over War Admiral in their match race at Belmont Park on next Monday afternoon . . . Wall beat Seabiscuit with Esposa at Laurel as well as with Stagehand at Santa Anita.

Mr Boston

"The mistake most people are making as they try to dope the winner of the match race," declared Wall, "is in Seabiscuit's ability to break . . . One would think Seabiscuit takes a sleep at the post . . . Instead he is a good breaker as I know from experience . . . I don't look to see War Admiral get away from the post any faster than Seabiscuit . . . Everybody knows that when it comes to putting on a real finish Seabiscuit ranks with the greatest of the thoroughbreds . . . I'm making a little wager on the 'Biscuit' to win."

Dave Wilson, who likes War Admiral in the big race between the Sam Riddle horse will go to the post a 1-2 favorite . . . It was Wilson who wrote to me from Florida a year ago last December as follows:

"There's a good looking horse down here by the name of War Admiral. Tab him in your book as he is going to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont."

That's just what he did.

Tom Thorp was back at Suffolk Downs bright and early this morning after attending Howard Reynolds' Barn Party at Weld, Me. . . . Lou Smith, Paul Rowser, Norman Charlton, Eddie Hurley, Eddie Welch, Billy Amea and Joe Conway also attended the affair . . . After Tom told me of the success of the affair, I was kicking myself a prior engagement prevented me from attending it . . . It was Joe Conway who induced Bill Carrigan to return as manager of the Red Sox under Bob Quinn.

Dinner to George Holland Tonight

I AM GOING to hurry over to town from the races and put on my tuxedo for the George Holland party at the Copley Plaza Hotel tonight . . . I have been one of the leaders in the move to have a dinner to end all dinners, but I must confess I am steamed up over this affair to George Holland . . . It is one of those dinners which people are really anxious to attend . . . George has done a swell job with the "Boston After Dark" column, and in addition is blessed with oceans of personality and good fellowship . . . Everybody from Governor Charles F. Hurley down to some of the custodians of the stage doors at the local theaters will be numbered among the 1200 guests . . . The guest of honor promises not to give any race track tips to those persons who attend the dinner which is somewhat of a concession.

It is probably natural for George to be a good writer . . . His grandmother, whose pen name was "Paula Patterson," was a leading newspaper writer when George was struggling with Latin, Greek and English at Boston College . . . Peter's ink was served with George's meals as a youngster and he liked it so much that he entered newspaper work when he graduated from Boston College . . . And today he's the champion of all of us . . . We'll salute him tonight.

Russ Murray Back on Job

RUSS MURRAY General Manager of the Revere dog track, is back on the job following an operation on his nose . . . Russ' doctor says he should remain at home for a few more days, but he refuses to do so in view of his numerous duties in connection with the opening of Wonderland Park on next Tuesday night . . . Murray says the early attendance and mutuel handle at Suffolk Downs convinces him people are still very much betting minded, and that the Revere dog track will get its share of the money . . . George Heustis is doing more doing the publicity for Wonderland Park . . . Sorry they don't have Cuban drinks at Wonderland as they do at Oriental Park Havana, where Heustis spent the winter with Lou Smith.

I think Ralph Zanone will win over "Kid" Kaplan at the Garden on Friday night, and for somebody Ruffolo to become New England featherweight champion by defeating of Tony Dupre . . . It is a fine card and should attract a large crowd . . . I am going to New York to see Joe Louis, America's Barney Ross jam, and hope to be back in time to take in the festivities at the Garden . . . I am still stringing along with Ross to retain his welterweight title . . . I don't think Barney can possibly be beaten by a featherweight.

Grove Gives Pitching Tips

By LEFTY GROVE

As told to Austen Lake

CHAPTER 1

The longer I am in baseball the more I think what a lucky accident it was when old Abner Doubleday laid out the first diamond in a cow pasture at Cooperstown, N. Y., and paced off thirty strides to mark the distance between the bases.

"Ninety feet," he said as he placed a rock to mark the distance at each corner.

Ninety feet it has been ever since that summer afternoon in 1830, more than 100 years ago. And upon that same distance, despite all the changes that have occurred in other departments of the game since then, is based the fine balance between the speed of the ball and the speed of the runner.

If it had been 85 feet or 95 feet these probably would not have been any game of baseball or at least it might have died aborning instead of developing into our National Sport.

During the last world series a friend of mine who has a liking for figures brought a stop watch to the games and measured the time that the different plays took from the instant of starting until the instant of being completed.

He found, for example that a fast man needed 3.9 seconds to get down to first base after hitting the ball to an infielder, and a runner of average speed made the distance in slightly more than four seconds.

So the infielders in order to be sure of getting their man at first base had to complete their stops and throws across the diamond in something under four seconds from the time the ball was hit. Being a pitcher what interested me most was the comparative times between the runner and the ball on a "clean" steal from first base.

Herb Pennock

We worked these figures out together, since even a tenth of a second stop watch could not be operated accurately enough by hand to time the flight of the ball from pitcher to catcher.

I am going to tell you after a bit why I like all these figures are important for a young pitcher to know.

We worked it out this way:

My fast ball travels the pitching distance of 60 feet 6 inches from the box to the plate in five-tenths of a second. That's how it proved that.

Now my friend had timed Burgess Whitehead, the Giants' second baseman, in 3.1 seconds.

The fastest pitch took .5 seconds that left about 2.3 seconds for Bill Dickey to catch the ball, bring back his arm and throw the 127 feet to second base. And the second baseman has .2 of a second to make his catch and the sweeping tag at the base. Even then, when the play was executed perfectly, the ball and Whitehead would have arrived at the same instant on at least one of those steals.

The reason I mention this is because experts have said and I know it is so, that 10 bases are stolen on the pitcher to one on the catcher. And I want to show how important it is for a young pitcher to hold baserunners close to their sacks.

I want to show, too, that pitching is not simply a question of throwing the ball past the batter, even when the pitcher has a fund of natural "stuff."

For example, we had a flock of young pitchers down South this spring.

As usual the photographers came out to the field to snap action pictures of the new men in order to send them on to the Boston papers. When the first batch of the pictures was ready the cameraman brought them to the hotel. Herb Pennock, our coach, was among the first to see them.

"There," he snorted in disgust, calling some of the young pitchers around him, "that shows just what I've been trying to drive into your skulls without success. Every one of you fellows has his gloved hand swung around in the region of his hip pockets."

That of course is a natural tendency after the ball has been thrown. But Pennock knew as any experienced baseball man does the importance of having that glove hand out in front at all times to protect against line drives and hits through the box.

A small detail perhaps, but one of the many little points that make the major league pitcher different from the bush league. Sometimes it's these things that make pitchers pick up their tricks faster than others.

(There will be another article on pitching by "Lefty" Grove in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

RIDDLE'S BIG CHANCE

A year ago, while Al Lopez was on the hospital list, Ray Mueller did enough steady receiving to develop into one of the best young catchers in the National League . . . Now Lopez' newly broken thumb, which will keep him out until the latter part of July, should give Johnny Riddle a chance to develop. Johnny hit .328 with Indianapolis last season . . . Abe Mitchell, the demon pro shop salesman, who was with John Bernardi at Charles River last season, has returned from Pinehurst . . . Of all things, Mrs. F. H. Baker Jr., played the wrong ball at Belmont against Mrs. Warren Beard, and it cost her the 15th hole . . . The Central-Midland playoff for the W. G. A. district team match championship will be held tomorrow at Oakley. Midland is a good short end bet . . . Ralph Guldahl will defend two major titles within a week, the U. S. open at Denver and the Western open at St. Louis . . . Fred Corcoran is headed for Toledo for the Inverness Invitation . . . After his recent experience, Freddie will not recommend any more pros for invitation tournaments . . . Before his umpires come to blows, Ford Frick had better break up that Moran-Magerkurth-Parker team. A week ago, in Brooklyn, Moran attempted to call the Bees-Dodgers game at the end of the first half of the fourth inning. It had been raining from the start of the game. "The Major" said "No, play it out" . . . The next afternoon, Moran overruled Magerkurth's decision that Vince DiMaggio's drive to the left field corner was a fair ball . . . Jesse Guilford will play in the state amateur championship for the first time since 1924 . . . Horton Smith still rates the Little-Thomson, Quinet-Guilford Boston American Christmas Basket Fund gallery at the Belmont Country Club the largest he's seen at an exhibition match . . .

Zanelli Insists He'll Kayo Kaplan Friday

Ralph Zanelli, Providence, today predicted he'd knock out Mike Kaplan when they clash in the 10-round feature bout of the Goodwin A. C. ring show Friday night at the Garden.

"Someone called the turn correctly the other day," said Zanelli, "when he said I'll prove too rugged for Kaplan.

"The same gent mentioned the fact I simply met a jinx in Georgie Martin, and he's very much correct. I beat a lot of good fighters—Callahan, Facho, Furr, Jackson—and then along came Martin.

Ralph Zanelli

"Martin didn't fight a lick in either bout with me. He covered up for the 20 rounds we battled, fighting only when I forced him, yet he got the decisions.

"I haven't any hoodoo to worry about against Kaplan. So I'll stop him in short order."

In the secondary feature, Salvatore Bartolo, East Boston, and Tony Dupre, Manchester, N. H., New England 126-pound champion, clash in a return bout.

Boy, 13, Wins $100 Test Prize

It's all over and the WINNAH!!! . . . is SPARKY. Yes, greyhound racing fans, Swifty's new name is SPARKY.

Out of more than 600 different names submitted by the thousands of Boston Evening American readers who entered the contest, the judges decided on the name of SPARKY. So now it's SPARKY instead of Swifty.

There were just an even dozen who sent in the name of SPARKY.

Although the rules of the contest confined the number of prizes to four, the judges decided to include all who chose the name of SPARKY in the awards, and consequently there will be eight five-dollar additional consolation prizes.

It was 13-year-old William Manning of Roxbury, a Junior High School student at the Hugh O'Brien School, who walked away with the crisp new $100.00 bill in his pocket.

The judges, after careful consideration of all the essays, believed young Manning's was best.

When called before the judges, the Manning boy, accompanied by his father, employed as a cable splitter at the Charlestown Navy Yard, related how he hit on the name Sparky.

"My dad and I always read the American. I like the funny parts and also the sports stories. When we heard of the Swifty contest, we both decided to enter it.

"We sat down for hours thinking of a new name for Wonderland's Swifty. My dad suggested a load of names but I didn't like them. I said to him finally that we should get something with some spark in it.

"Dad suddenly hollered, 'That's it . . . Sparky.' I thought that was good, too, so I wrote the letter with the name and essay and sent it to the editor. Well, you can bet I'm happy over it, and dad is, too."

Dad brought the proud youngster to the offices of the American where the award was made. Jack Conway, sports editor, made the presentation.

Adnah Neyhart, Managing Director of Wonderland, and Russell Murray, General Manager of the Bay State Greyhound Association, which opens the summer meeting at Wonderland one week from tonight, represented the judges, who also included President George C. Funk of the Bay State Greyhound Association and Howard C. Davis, president of the Old Harbor Kennel Club.

ROSS PLANS BODY ATTACK

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—It takes but one mild gander at Barney Ross in training to bear out the suspicion that on Thursday night he will follow a hoary old tradition and swing his punches at the stomach of Henry Armstrong.

The welterweight champion has been digging hooks into the equators of his guinea hens "or three weeks, which seems odd to the layman, for Henry comes at you with his wind whistling nose far out in front of him, as unprotected as a cow catcher, while his strange body is tucked away behind the head and out of swinging range.

"But his body'll be easier to hit," Barney was telling us after he arrived here today from his Grossinger Lake training camp.

"Henry's head wags and bobbles so much that even though it's always a lot closer to you, it's tougher to hit than you'd think.

"Henry's body is a bigger target. Less shifty, too. And a pretty good place to concentrate on, under the circumstances."

To bring the Negro's body a little closer to him Ross has perfected a good-looking right hand uppercut.

It probably isn't good enough to knock out a man, for knockout punches aren't developed in training camps. But Barney's new uppercut would straighten up the ancient soothsayer in "le coq d'or."

And once the clawing, sniffing, weaving little Armstrong ever straightens up, his dreams of being the first featherweight champion ever to win the welterweight crown will dissolve.

Revenge

Pays Back Umpire; And Pays $25

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 24 (INS)—Catcher Chico Hernandez of the Bloomington Three-I League doesn't like umpires.

Ejected and fined by Umpire Al Schiefelbein last May 15, Hernandez bided his time. Then, with Schiefelbein again behind the plate, Hernandez signaled for a fast ball.

The pellet fairly smoked as it neared the batter. Suddenly Hernandez fell flat on his stomach.

Plop! The ball hit Schiefelbein squarely in the mid-section, knocked him back a few yards and doubled him up.

Blackcock Assigned Top Weight

By the Associated Press

Hirsch Jacobs is best known as America's leading trainer of flat runners but he also knows a thing or two about conditioning jumpers. As evidence, take the Immortal 2nd, which carries his wife's silks. The seven-year old gelding, no better than second last eyar, has started three times this year and accounted for three victories. His latest came yesterday when he easily defeated four rivals at Belmont Park.

Blackcock, owned by Louis E. Stoddard of Westbury, N. Y., and recognized as one of the best brush horses in the United States, has been assigned top weight of 136 pounds for the Greenwich Cup Handicap steeplechase at the Fairfield and Westchester hounds hunt meeting Saturday. Eight others have been named for the three-mile test, including Charles 2nd, winner last year.

Hal Price Headley plans to ship two fillies to Louisville for the running of the Kentucky Oaks at Churchill Downs Saturday. Drift Along, which won two races at Belmont Park, will be the main reliance of the stable, while Flying Lee will be a partner in the race. Earl Steffen has been engaged to ride one of the pair.

There is very little action in the betting mart on the War Admiral-Seabiscuit match race at Belmont Park next Monday.

Among those who have wagered, the Admiral is a hot favorite with several of the club house commissioners holding Samuel Riddle's colt as short as 3 to 5. They predict he may be ' to 2 at post time.

Fair Knightess, the five-year-old mare which Charles S. Howard purchased from H. C. McGehee, has shown herself to be something of a sprinter. She was always able to give a good account of herself in distance races but yesterday at Belmont Park she reeled off six furlongs in 1:11 2-5 and soundly whipped four rivals, including The Fighter, winner of his three previous starts.

What the Stars Did

BILL LEE, Cubs—Limited Bees to six hits to gain 4-1 victory in mound duel with Lou Fette.

AL TODD, MACE BROWN and RUSS BAUERS, Pirates—Todd's first inning double drove in two runs; Brown and Bauers gave Giants only four hits in 5 2-3 innings of relief pitching to gain 4-3 triumph.

DEL YOUNG, Phillies—Hit two doubles in 7-6 victory over Cardinals, driving in two runs and putting Mulcahy in position to score winning tally.

Armstrong Plans To Enter Red Hot

By HYPE IGOE

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., May 24 (INS)—Henry Armstrong will enter the ring in Madison Square Garden bowl to fight for the welterweight championship of the world—with his second wind!

Second wind, you ask? That's just what the little featherweight king will tote into the roped enclosure. He tells me it is his greatest asset. That second wind!

Before he enters the ring, he will shadow-box eight full rounds at about half the usual gymnasium speed. He will come to face Ross—steaming! Only once in his career did Henry neglect to "warm up" in the dressing room and that was the night he became featherweight champion by knocking out Petey Sarron in Madison Square Garden.

SECOND WIND BEST

Henry was so fearful about his condition after having weighed in a little over 124 pounds that he did not dare tax his concentrated strength further. He had made the weight and, as it turned out, more easily than Petey had. He had to risk getting his precious "second wind" while the fight was in progress.

"I got my second wind along about the fourth round," said Henry today. "It came up into my lungs like a sunrise. That is a wonderful feeling. Every fighter has experienced it, I guess. You get your second wind and it seems like a new lease on life when you are in the ring."

"We actually saw Henry take a deep breath and come up with that second wind," said Brother Harry Armstrong, who nodded approval when Henry said:

"I make no bones about coming into the ring with my second wind. Barney can be in on it if he cares to read what I have to say. It's no secret. I come into the ring red hot and I guess now that people will better understand why I can start off at the first bell at a pace that seems a killing one, yet one which I maintain right up to a knockout! I say knockout because I've become so accustomed to finishing my man that it has become second nature with me. I see no good reason to switch now."

Dun Colleges For Grid Taxes

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—Treasury agents prepared today to collect $1,000,000 in college football taxes under terms of a decision of the Supreme Court holding this levy constitutional.

Over the vehement protests of Georgia and 11 other states, which contended football games of state college teams are state functions, the highest court ruled, in substance, these contests are big business, and must pay federal taxes.

The decision, from which Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented, held college athletics are not a government function, and reversed a ruling of the Fifth U. S. Circuit Court at New Orleans which held the 10 per cent levy on admission invalid.

Germaine Night At Gordon Show

Ted Germaine, who has wrestled 312 consecutive weeks in Boston, a record unequaled by any other grappler in the world, will meet his acid test tomorrow night when he enters his 313th bout to meet Adolph Shultz of Germany.

Shultz, most scientific matman to appear in this city in years, is bound to give the Boston boy plenty of opposition.

The night will also mark the 1000th bout of Germaine under the Gordon banner.

The South Boston youth was one of the first matmen engaged by Gordon when he opened at the old Revere Cycle track six years ago. He was on the first card and since that time has wrestled an average of 3 nights a week for Gordon.

MacPhail Wars With Brooklyn Scribes

Cincinnati 100 P. C. Behind McKechnie's Ideas

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Tony Canzoneri is playing the races regularly this week hoping to collect a big bank roll to shoot on Barney Ross . . . Intimates say if Max Baer's baby dies, Max never will enter the ring again . . . Barney Ross will pull down $50,000 for fighting Henry Armstrong.

Some of the listless play of the Pirates may be traced to their coaching . . . At the Polo Grounds yesterday this collum heard Jewel Ens, officiating at third, whistle twice . . . But if Pie Traynor, at first, either hollered once or shifted his position, we were scooped.

MAX SHARPENS EYE

Max Schmeling left his pigeon-shooting outfit in Germany and had a new one rushed up from New York yesterday . . . Max says pegging away at the clay birds sharpens his eyes . . . Stub Allison plans a big shakeup on his 1938 California Bear eleven . . . Is this business about Dizzy Dean turning southpaw if his injured right soup bone doesn't come around, on the level? . . . Expert boxing writers estimate 90 per cent of all fights are on the up and up . . . Get Al Schacht to tell you about the time he hired a chauffeur who couldn't even drive.

Babe Ruth showed up at Ebbets Field yesterday with his wife, two daughters and mother-in-law in tow . . . The old boy still is doing his part to boost the game he did so much for and which he never should have been allowed to leave.

There is plenty of moaning at the New Orleans bars since Jim Rooney, captain elect of the Loyola University eleven, was offered and accepted an appointment to West Point.

Cincinnati scribes, 100 per cent for Bill McKechnie and his ideas, say his youthful Reds have not yet hit their peak.

MacPHAIL IN WRONG

Ohio State isn't saying much, but they've got a back named Scott out there ready to be turned loose in the fall . . . Pete Minego, of the Portsmouth (O.) Times, already has dubbed him "Great" Scott.

Brooklyn baseball writers vs. Larry MacPhail . . . On a Thursday Larry swore he hadn't bought Dolph Camilli of the Phillies for $60,000; then on Saturday announced the purchase . . . Last week he laughed off reports the Dodgers would install flood lights, but made the story official on Sunday . . . When a Brooklyn reporter protested, he was ordered from the press box . . . The paper for which he works has taken up the matter with President Ford C. Frick . . . Meantime the flatbush authors are at the "berling pernt."

Manrico Dave's Best

By DAVE WILSON

BEST BET—MANRICO 7TH RACE

SUFFOLK DOWNS, May 24—Miss A. Doris' Manrico, bangup third to Slump and Sun Mica in a recently-run $3500 claimer, should literally smother $2500-$2300 rivals encountered in tomorrow's seventh race.

Manrico picks up only one additional pound, and capable H. Kepper is slated to do honors.

FIRST RACE
Dark Sweet, Roidef, Big Ned

DARK SWEET holds all the foot of the juveniles listed to perform in the day's opener and apparently needs only a smooth ride to insure brackets. Roidef is also speedy and should offer the top selection a stiff argument in the early stages. BIG NED is a come-from-behind youngster and a keen possibility.

SECOND RACE
Princess Torch, Maxine, Michigan Lady

PRINCESS TORCH performed as if a trifle shy on racing condition when she recently finished third in the race won by Bryonin. MAXINE, from Maryland, and MICHIGAN LADY shape up as the main dangers.

THIRD RACE
Irene's Bob, High Image, Miney Myerson

IRENE'S BOB turned in a most impressive score over $1250 platers the other day, and there's every reason to expect a repetition. HIGH IMAGE figures only a shade behind the top selection. MINEY MYERSON is at tops and cannot be disregarded.

FOURTH RACE
Lucky Jean, High Pool, Fast Express

LUCKY JEAN droped a hard-fought decision to improved porcelus the other day, and on the strength of that grand performance, she looms as a fuzzy. HIGH-POOL accounted for his most recent race in clever fashion, but in front of that he was unable to match strides wit hthe top selection. FAST EXPRESS is a keen possibility if you toss out his dull effort of the other day.

FIFTH RACE
Blind Eagle, Finance, Orinoco

BLIND EAGLE is easily the class of this affair. FINANCE will run coupled with the top selection and may be used to kill off the early pace. ORINOCO, say the speed-chart experts, may prove a real tough nut to crack.

SIXTH RACE
Deliberator, Accolade, Higher Cloud.

DELIBERATOR, hero of the toboggan, looked the part of a picture horse when he pulled up four panels in :47 3-5 over yesterday's slow track. ACCOLADE, second to Preeminent in two Pimlico outings, shapes up slightly better than Higher Cloud.

SEVENTH RACE
Manrico, Red Raider, Delta Dan

If anything upsets MANRICO it will likely be RED RAIDER. The latter's most recent start was much too poor to be true and should not be taken too seriously. DELTA DAN drubbed only $1800 platers in her last race, but the speed figures accord her a royal chance.

EIGHTH RACE
Peaceful, Drell Story, Sunerax

PEACEFUL will have no Wulfstans to head in the eighth and the Harvey Campbell-trained mare figures to chalk up her initial set of brackets at the meeting.

FIRST RACE—Two-year-olds, purse $1000, five furlongs:

Battleship's Owner Ships To Agawam

SPRINGFIELD, May 24 — Mrs. Randolph Scott, whose Battleship won the Grand National at Aintree, is to ship a detachment of jumpers at Agawam Park for the 33-day meeting which opens Saturday, according to the announcement made this morning by General Manager Eddie Brennan.

Carroll Bassett

Carroll K. Bassett, former amateur rider who has long been associated with Mrs. Scott as trainer of her thoroughbreds, was to arrive here today to inspect a course which was laid out by William duPont Jr., brother of Mrs. Scott, preliminary to bringing the jumpers from Monipeller, Orange County, Virginia, to Agawam Park.

All records for attendance will probably be smashed Saturday as the picture postcard track heads into its 33-day meeting.

Sunday was inspection day, and Percy Hewey, chief of Agawam police, estimated that more than 25,000 horse-lovers visited the track.

Cards Ask Waivers on 13

ST. LOUIS, May 24 (AP) — Waivers have been asked on "twelve or thirteen" St. oLuis Cardinal players, including Slinging Sammy Baugh, in what President Sam Breadon termed "an emergency effort" to bring the club within the 23-player limit.

Baseball circles, however, saw the Cardinals' action as a possible move to bring about a settlement of the Breaden-Rickey-Landis bickering over player releases.

Dot Bundy Wins English Match

CHISWICK, Eng., May 24 (AP) —Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., a member of the American Wightman Cup tennis team, reached the third round of the Middlesex championships today when she defeated Miss B. M. Smith of England, 8—6, 6—3.

Her teammate, Graeyn Wheeler, lost in the second round to Mrs. Heine Miller, South African star, 6—4, 6—3.

Reis Is Awarded To Stengel Team

By BILL GRIMES

Before the Bees returned from the West, Manager Casey Stengel had pared his roster down to the 23 player limit but last night, with the deadline only a few hours in the offing, President Ford Frick notified Bob Quinn that Pitcher Tommy Reis, who'd been toiling for the Phillies, had been awarded to Boston via the waiver route.

The Bees were three players over the limit going West, but they disposed of Johnny Niggeling and Roy Johnson while in Cincinnati and during the series sold Eddie Mayo to the Los Angeles club.

Hoping to acquire some players who'll strengthen the Bees, Bob Quinn has held up a number of waiver requests.

Although the acquisition of Tommy Reis put them over the player limit, the Bees may use Al Lopez as an out. The Pride of Ybor City will be out of the lineup for at least seven weeks with a broken thumb, and he can be placed on the voluntary retired list if he's to be lost to the club for two months.

REIS IS 22

In the event that such a move is decided upon, Manager Stengel will be able to retain his present swarm, at least until such a time as another newcomer is added to the roster, which may be any day now.

Despite the fact that the Bees pitching corps is highly rated, Tommy Reis should fit nicely into the picture. He is only 22 years old, stands six-two and weighs 185. And, he throws and bats right handed.

Tommy Reis pitched two and one-third innings against the Bees in Philadelphia, during that 16 to 11 affair. Ray Mueller connected with the lone Boston hit, a two-bagger, made off Reis, and was the only Stengeleer to reach out of the first eight men that faced him.

WON 19 GAMES

Reis won 19 and lost nine for Wilkes-Barre in the N. Y. P. League last season and crashed the Hall of Fame by hurling a no-hit-no-run game in the play offs against Elmira. In that game two of the first three batters that faced Reis reached first without a hit. Then, he set the next 26 down in order.

Marked Bills Trap White House Thief

Burglar Nets $1200 In Roosevelt Home

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS) — A series of brazen thefts at the heavily-policed White House led today to the arrest of William S. Buckley, a mail room employe at the executive offices, who, authorities said, was trapped by G-men with marked bills.

Buckley was formally charged by the United States attorney's office here with petty larceny. He may be charged later with the more serious offense of tampering with the mails.

Accused of having carried on systematic larceny for about a year, Buckley pilfered gifts sent to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, according to authorities, who said some of these were recovered from the Buckley home.

Federal agents said loot aggregated about $1200 in value.

Boldness of the thief, who has been apparently carrying on his depredations right under the noses of the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and the White House family, have had the President's aides worried.

Money has been taken from upper rooms in the White House. Several persons, including the President's personal secretary, Miss Marguerite Le Hand, have found their purses rifled.

About $200 in cash has vanished from the White House police organization's fund, which is kept in one of the ground floor offices.

It also was reported that White House mail was opened frequently throughout the period by the prowler, who apparently was seeking money in the letters.

N. H. Heir Slain for His $50

Los Angeles police today were confronted by a weird murder mystery in the death of Dwight Taylor Simpson, 32-year-old art collector and heir to a New Hampshire chain store fortune.

Simpson was found beaten to death in his apartment, his nude body lying in front of a mysterious shrine of black candles.

Missing was $50 that, police ascertained, Simpson had just received from his mother, Mrs. Hugh A. Simpson, of Laconia, N. H.

Also missing was Simpson's expensive limousine. Los Angeles police expressed the belief the car was taken by the murderer in his flight. A State-wide alarm was sent out.

Simpson's wallet, empty, apparently rifled, lay on the floor near his body.

Police said indications were that

Ickes Weds Girl of 25 In Dublin

DUBLIN, May 24 (INS) —With the officiating minister unaware of the distinguished bridegroom's governmental position, Harold L. Ickes, 64, United States Secretary of the Interior, was married here today to Miss Jane Dahlman, 25, of Milwaukee, Wis.

All arrangements for the ceremony had been shrouded in secrecy. It was performed by the Rev. R. K. Hanna of the Adelaide Road Presbyterian Church.

Ickes sailed from New York secretly on the French liner Normandie last Wednesday. He reached Dublin this morning just

Insist U.S. Stop Red Plot

WASHINGTON, May 24 —A demand that the United States conduct a rigid investigation of Communist plots to recruit Americans for service with the Loyalist army in Spain was made today by Congressman McCormack of Massachusetts.

The demand was made in letters to Secretary of State Hull, Attorney General Cummings and Secretary of Labor Perkins. McCormack enclosed statements of men who revealed details of recruiting methods and described the intrigue which has cost many Americans their lives on the battlefield.

(The statements were reported to include those of Captain Alvin Halpern, Boston youth who told in an exclusive Boston Evening American series of his bitter experiences in Spain as a Communist recruit.)

"The evidence clearly shows that an international organization exists to obtain enlistments, or what amounts to enlistments, in the United States, of American citizens," McCormack said in his letter.

"After the enlistment, or promise of enlistment, is obtained, those who respond are transported to France and, through the Communist organization there, reach their final destination.

"It is clear the Communist party in the United States is actively aiding the so-called Loyalist cause, and is obtaining enlistments for service in that army."
